REPORT FUEHRER, DUCE AGREE ON TERMS OF FRENCH ARMISTICE

U. S. Increases Scope of Plan For Its Defense

Government Speeds Work on Military And Economic Measures to Prevent Transfer of French Possessions In New World to Dictators

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States stepped up its efforts to reinforce the political, economic and military defenses of the western hemisphere today as Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini considered the peace terms to be offered France.

Leaders predicted that the house would pass legislation before nightfall charting a course of action in case any attempt is made to transfer French possessions in the new world to Germany.

The resolution, approved by the senate yesterday 76 to 0, does not refer specifically to the European war but serves notice that the United States would not "acquiesce" in the transfer of western hemisphere colonies from one non-American nation to another.

It provides that, if any attempt to effect such a transfer appears likely, the United will consult immediately with the other American republics on steps "to safeguard their common interests."

This consultation, the declaration says, will be "in addition to other measures."

In diplomatic circles it was predicted freely, however, that the question of sending troops to French possessions in this part of the world would not arise, at least for a considerable time. These include Gaudclupe and Martinique in the Caribbean, French Guiana on the north coast of South America, and St. Pierre and Miquelon island near New Foundland.

It was pointed out that these lands have no great wealth like the oil of the Dutch West Indies, to which the Allies sent troops as a precaution after Germany overran The Netherlands.

High officials worked also on a plan of Pan-American trade co-operation which officials said would, in effect, prevent the Nazi barter system from playing one American country against another in buying such products as wheat, cotton, beef, coffee and copper.

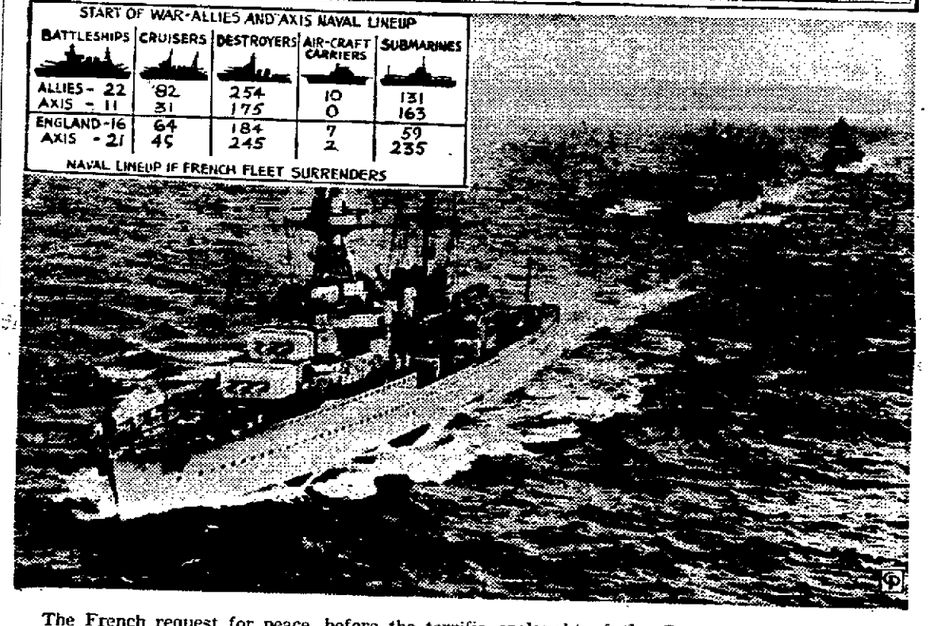
NAVAL LINEUP IF FRENCH FLEET SURRENDERS



The French request for peace, before the terrific onslaught of the German armies, has raised two vital questions—what will become of the French colonies and what will become of the big and powerful French navy. The map at the top shows French possessions over the world (in black). Note that some of them are close to the United States. At the bottom, a part of the French fleet, with a table showing the comparative power of the British and axis navies in two circumstances—if the British should take over the French fleet, and if the fleet should fall to Germany and Italy.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Changes in the government of Prime Minister Winston Churchill were reported imminent today and it was understood that David Lloyd George, liberal and World war premier, would be invited to take an important post.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill predicted confidently to the house of commons today that forces invading England likely would be "drowned in the sea or blown to pieces while trying to land."

But he warned that, despite vast preparations to meet invasion, the nation soon will face bombing attacks.

Churchill also declared that the French would "be casting away their future" unless they continued the war, but he admitted "the battle of France is over; the battle of Britain is about to begin."

"If we lose it, the whole world, including the United States of America, will sink into the abyss of a new dark age," he said.

The prime minister declared that Britain could not relieve France of her "treaty obligations" to continue the war.

He said, in fact, "it is not yet certain that military resistance by

MUNICH — (UP) — Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini tonight reached agreement upon the attitude of the Axis powers toward France's request for an armistice. It was indicated that the heads of the German and Italian states decided upon the terms—widely expected to be unconditional capitulation—under which France will be allowed an armistice.

In a sudden dramatic turn of events—possibly hinting collapse of peace efforts—Premier Marshal Petain and Generalissimo Weygand appealed tonight to all French forces to keep on fighting until an armistice is actually signed.

MUNICH—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, wearing field grey uniforms, met to decide the fate of defeated France today amidst a rising clamor in the German press for a "settlement without sentimentality."

The two men, meeting to decide on the price they would exact for stopping the destruction of France, conferred immediately after the arrival of Il Duce at the Fuehrer house from Rome.

Official circles in both Rome and Berlin had made it clear that German and Italian forces would fight against France and her territories until issuance of a "cease fire order to make sure that whatever terms they decide upon must be accepted by a prostrate France.

Indicating that the discussions would be short an official source said that a communique would be issued tonight.

Hitler and Mussolini were attended by their foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, respectively, high military advisers and high Nazi and Fascist party officials.

Streets were decked with flags and the press of the throngs was so great that many fainted under a hot sun. The more stalwart sang war songs.

They had greeted Hitler on his arrival this morning and then had waited patiently at the station and along the streets for Mussolini to arrive at 3:05 p. m.

FIGHTERS: U. S. Adds Two Streamline Divisions to Army

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, today recommended a 70 per cent increase in the strength of the U. S. fleet.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The expanding regular army added two new streamlined divisions to its roster today, as congress went to work on the $1,200,000,000 navy bill that would give the United States the mightiest fleet in the history of seapower.

The new divisions—heavily armed and completely motorized—will give the army a total of eight streamlined units, each designed to strike with greater speed and power than the ponderous old-style divisions.

Secretary of War Woodring, announcing plans for the new divisions last night, said their troops would be drawn from the 38,000 enlistments for which congress provided funds recently when it increased army strength to 280,000 men.

Legislation for an even larger standing army is already half way through congress. Unanimously and without debate the house voted yesterday to move the strength up to 400,000 men—25,000 more than requested by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

With senate approval expected for an increase of at least that size, General Marshall has plans ready for a ninth streamlined division and the second of two highly mechanized divisions, similar to the German Panzer divisions used in the European war.

The new fleet expansion bill, authorizing the construction of 84 more fighting ships during the next four years, was promised quick action as the house naval committee opened hearings.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), putting passage of the bill in the "must" category, declared that "world conditions make it absolutely imperative that the navy be built up as rapidly as possible."

The program, representing a fleet expansion of 23.5 per cent, envisions a 1944 navy twice the size it was in 1938. In that year a 20 per cent increase was voted. Last week congress finished action on an additional 11 per cent expansion. Completion of the whole huge undertaking would give the nation a fleet of 618 ships.

Paving Work to Start Within 2 Weeks; Stander Firm Low With $67,937 Bid.

Start of paving work on West Fourth street within the next two weeks was seen today as the state department of highways awarded to the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company the contract for the improvement on its low bid of $67,937.86.

The firm's proposal was $1,472 lower than the bid submitted by George B. Herring and Son, only other bidder on the project.

State highway officials who opened the bids Saturday said the successful quotation was $16,463 under estimates made on the job by state engineers. They had figured the cost at $84,400.

Terms of the contract highway officials said call for completion of the improvement before Nov. 30.

The project is set up to employ approximately 200 WPA workers for the five-month period.

Squabble Settled, City's Firemen Start Vacations

A bitter controversy was ended today as city firemen started their two-week vacations under a revised schedule which will carry the vacancies through the end of the year and allow for full time maintenance of all stations.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the plan calls for four men off each month instead of eight as had been previously scheduled by Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger.

MANSFIELD HIT BY 'BABY FLOOD'

Inch and a Half of Rain Falls In Brief Period; Basement At City Hall Flooded.

Beating down steadily for more than an hour and a half, rain of near cloudburst proportions, caused "baby flood" conditions in Mansfield this afternoon.

More than an inch and a half of rain fell during the period, transforming streets into miniature streams, and flooding basements in business and residential sections.

At city hall, basement quarters of the police department were flooded. Prisoners were moved to other cells when their own quarters were flooded with a foot of water.

In the police department offices, officers moved files and other equipment to window ledges and on desk tops to save them from damage.

WARNING: Argentina Tells U. S. of Its Export Needs

(By Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES—Informed Argentine sources declared today that the South American nations, dependent on substantial export trade balance for both financial and political stability, needed material aid from the United States to avert domination by totalitarian powers in Europe.

These sources said the time had arrived when the United States must choose between extending far-reaching financial aid to these "economic victims of the European war" or watching these nations fall into economic systems of old world totalitarian nations.

Argentina, like Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and other South American republics, has seen her export markets disrupted and some of them eliminated by the spread of war in Europe, these sources pointed out.

These comments came as news arrived from Washington of a White House plan for an inter-American cartel, or sales agency, to handle western hemisphere exports.

(Under this plan a foreign purchaser would have to deal with this single agency rather than shop around for a bargain among the various countries.

(Experts of the United States Department of Commerce said the plan would protect the American republics against being forced to accept barter deals such as those offered by Germany and Italy.)

Argentines said their nation provided the best example of the peril

Hey, Boys! It's Soap Box Derby Time Again!

Hey fellows, here's the news you have been waiting for. It's Soap Box Derby time.

And you can start work today on your car so it'll be ready to help you win fame in the fourth annual classic to be staged in Mansfield early in August.

One of the most important changes in the rules this year concerns the age limit. Boys between the ages of 11 and 15 years are eligible to participate. Last year, youngsters 10 years old were permitted in the Derby.

This year's coaster meet will again be divided into two groups—Class A and Class B—the former for boys 13 to 15 inclusive and the latter for youths 11 to 12 inclusive.

Winner of the Mansfield Derby, being sponsored by The News-Journal in co-operation with the Mohican Chevrolet agency and the Y. M. C. A., will be awarded a silver trophy and will go to Akron to take part in the national Derby.

All you have to do to enter is to call at the Mohican Chevrolet agency or Y. M. C. A. accompanied by your parents and sign a registration blank.

Rule books—and they are important items this year since the national committee has made several changes—may be obtained when you register.

Several drivers' meetings will be held at the Y. M. C. A. for instructions in building and racing your cars. Announcements will be made later concerning dates of these sessions.

One of the new rules prohibits the use of the car which Carl Kindinger of Mansfield drove to victory last year. All the other cars in last year's event may be used again—but must be driven by the boy who built and drove the car a year ago.

The date and site for the classic have not been selected by the official derby committee but will be announced within a few days—so watch The News-Journal.

MEMORY: Germans Recall Versailles as French Fall

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

Berlin was radiating the spirit of hard terms for France today.

That news fits a vivid impression which I have been carrying about for 21 years—an impression which came from the look on the drawn, grey faces of the German envoys as they signed the Treaty of Versailles.

There was a grim expression of defiance which advertised louder than words that some day they would strike back. That picture has been constantly in my mind since France signalled that she wanted peace.

The only thing which appears definite about the terms at this juncture is that the basis of an armistice will be the complete elimination of France as a fighting factor.

France has declared that she won't accept dishonorable peace terms. All indications are, however, that she must be prepared for terribly hard conditions. It will be passing strange if Hitler doesn't dismember the empire.

France certainly is faced with heart-break, and in this hour of trial one instinctively thinks of her premier who has taken the wheel in this crisis — Marshal Henri Petain.

There could be no courage greater than that displayed by this 84-year-old military genius in allowing himself to be drafted to serve as the premier who must present the capitulation of his beloved France to Hitler.

In his broadcast to his people, announcing that France must sue for peace, the marshal said in his simple but dignified language:

Legislature Goes Into High Gear on Bricker Program

$2,800,000 RELIEF PLAN BEING RUSHED

Leaders Predict Enactment In Four Days; Ballot Split Also Considered.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Working at top speed, legislative committees today recommended for passage by the Ohio general assembly bills to separate the national and state tickets at the Nov. 5 election and to appropriate $2,800,000 for relief and old age pensions.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio legislature moved quickly into high gear today and administration leaders predicted that Gov. John W. Bricker's six-point program, including $2,800,000 for relief and old age pensions, would be enacted within four days.

Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert said the senate could complete its work by tonight if the house kept pace. The house, however, with four times the senate membership, will need at least three days and maybe four, Speaker William M. McCulloch said.

Five bills, introduced as the Republican-controlled general assembly convened in special session last night, were taken up in committee meetings today. They were:

Appropriating $1,460,387.95 for poor relief, to be distributed among the local governments on a ratio of their expenditures in the last six months of 1939; and making available an additional $333,333.33 for relief loans to cities and counties.

Appropriating $2,000,000 (half of it federal funds) for old age pensions during the remainder of the year, which on the present scale of $23 a month average payments, would permit the addition of at least 14,500 persons to the rolls;

Creating a special ballot for the presidential and vice presidential candidates in the November election, thus severing them from the state ballot;

Increasing the maximum old age persion payments from $30 a month to $40, effective March 31, 1941, although the measure made no provision for the necessary additional funds, and amending the aid for dependent children act to release for use between $800,000 and $900,000 in federal funds now "frozen" in the state treasury.

The sixth bill, enabling local governments to fund poor relief deficits incurred before Jan. 1, was recommended for passage by the senate taxation committee.

While leaders of the senate Republicans reported complete harmony, house Republicans were not so fortunate.

Some of the nine Republican representatives from Hamilton county (Cincinnati) were piqued because their fellow townsman, Rep. William H. Deddens, was not chosen speaker pro-tem succeeding J. Harry McGregor of West LaFayette, now in congress.

Although Deddens practically had been conceded the position in informed quarters, a first-term "dark horse" from the rural bloc—Rep. Harold W. Houston (R-Champaign)—was chosen. The vote was Houston 56, Deddens 23.

Should the Hamilton county Republicans register their indignation by voting against the ballot-splitting bill, they might prevent its enactment as an emergency measure effective immediately. In this event, the Democrats could obtain a referendum and keep it from going into effect for the Nov. 5 election.

Democrats indicated they would attempt to amend the administration's ballot bill and divorce also the candidates for U. S. senator from the state ticket.

When members of the Mansfield board of education arrived at the John Simpson school for their meeting last night they found tiny envelopes containing three pennies at their places around the table. The "mail" was from John H. Eisaman, board clerk, who used the novel method to reimburse the members for the additional postage they had to pay to get the minutes of their last meeting out of the postoffice. Eisaman underestimated the weight of the minutes and didn't put enough stamps on the envelopes. His tiny envelopes carrying the pennies were replicas of regular envelopes with stamps, postmark and all the trimmings. They were made by Eiseman's secretary, Miss Mary Holmes.

There was a lot of activity at the Red Cross chapter office this morning as boxes of new garments were being packed for shipment to Europe. They were sweaters and women's and girls' dresses and 25 layettes, each with 32 pieces. Every garment was having a tiny Red Cross emblem sewed into it and on a tag is written "Richland County Chapter." Every garment is inspected and then arranged in groups as to sizes. Mrs. George Hughes, chairman of inspecting and packing, and Mrs. William Roth, were doing the work today. In the lot are the infants clothes that were made by Mrs. L. W. Olson and her volunteer workers, who are working independently of the Red Cross, but turning their completed garments over to the Red Cross for distribution.

Police today were searching for a thief who hurled a brick through a plate glass window at the Buell-Kraft studio, 48 West Third street, last night and carried off three cameras valued at $103.

The theft was discovered shortly before 5 a. m. today by a passerby who notified police of the broken window. Officers said they found a paving brick among several moving picture projectors which were overlooked by the thief.

C. A. Buell, proprietor, said an inventory revealed that two movie cameras and a kodak, valued at $103 had been taken. He estimated damage to the window at $50.

HEAR RUMORS OF AGREEMENT BY TAFT, DEWEY

Leaders Say Third Term Dealt Heavy Blow by French Capitulation.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Fresh talk of the Republicans nominating a "dark horse" swept the capital today despite rumors that the forces of Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft and New York racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey will reach an agreement before a ballot is taken at the Philadelphia convention.

Republican leaders meanwhile predicted that the capitulation of France would end President Roosevelt's third term ambitions. Some Republicans declared that the president would not seek a third term while others said he might but would face certain defeat in November. They argued that the president had staked his foreign policy too heavily on an Anglo-French victory.

The Taft-Dewey alliance rumors circulated without sanction from either candidate. In fact, certain Taft and Dewey followers denied the rumors, each side asserting that their favorite will be nominated without help from his rival. The rumors appeared to be based upon the fact that Taft and Dewey together are expected to control more than 700 delegates, more than enough to nominate the 1940 Republican ticket.

In the talk of a "dark horse" compromise, there was no agreement. Rep. Bruce Barton, of New York, who will second the nomination of Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive, said that his favorite was gaining in strength day by day.

The GOP attack on the president meanwhile was led by Sen. Townsend (Del.), and Reps. Fish and Tinkham (N.Y.).

Fish said: "I think Roosevelt's third term ambitions have been knocked into a cocked hat. No president ever had a greater opportunity to promote peace, but he has missed the bus."

Tinkham said: "Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Hull's policy of political intervention in every quarrel in Europe and Asia is finished. So are Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull."

DIES AT AGE 71

Miss Clara Motz Was Civic Leader In Loudonville.

LOUDONVILLE — Miss Clara Motz, 71, civic leader and teacher, died Monday night at her home West Main street, after a lingering illness. She was born in New Lexington, March 20, 1869.

She was graduated from the Loudonville schools in 1888 and entered the teaching profession. She contributed articles to educational periodicals relative to her work as primary instructor. She taught in Loudonville and Akron. Until a year ago she wrote for the Loudonville Advocate, and was in charge of the children's hour at the public library.

She was also a former president of the Progress club of Loudonville.

Surviving are a brother, Albert of Columbus and a sister, Miss Josephine Motz, of Loudonville, and three nieces.

Funeral services will be held at the Zion Lutheran church Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. H. Kuhlman will be in charge. Burial will be in Londonville cemetery.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

My Heart Belongs to Daddy (Patter on Paters)

Broadway had special reason to celebrate Father's day this year, for fathers played a lively part in the goings on around Times Square during the past season, and those involved deserve at least a few dazzling cravats tossed in their direction.

"Life With Father" was certainly the most satisfying comedy of the season, thanks largely to Howard Lindsay's portrayal of the All Time Papa of All Time. Andy Hardy and his dad were the favorite celluloid citizens of the Capitol moviegoers; and John Barrymore titilated paying and non-paying audiences with his enactment of father roles—on stage in "My Dear Children," off-stage in his father-oh-father-come-home-with-me-now scene with his daughter Diana in a nightclub.

All kinds of things happened to the daddies this season. Father Walter Houston was directed by his son John in "Passenger To Bali." . . . George M. Cohan and his daughter Mary continued the biggest father-and-daughter feud on Broadway when she insisted on singing in a night spot and topped off this flaunting of his disapproval by eloping. . . .

Sherman Billingsley, who spent every night in the year watching the debutantes and the glamour girls slink in and out of his Stork Club, could be observed almost any afternoon strolling 53rd st. with his three-year-old daughter, showing her the sights in the pet shop windows. . . .

* * *

The National Father's Day Committee, after research that left it simply limp, was forced to admit that there was in existence no painting of a father that would serve as a national trademark like Whistler's Mother. They might whip one up—a panoramic shot of Eddie Cantor and his five daughters and Bing Crosby and his four sons would make a nice mural. . . . The most glamorous fathers around town are Alfred Gynne Vanderbilt, Tony Duke, William Rhinelander Stewart, Tony Bliss and Marshall Field, Jr., of cafe society.

* * *

George Jessel's step-father looks younger than he does, and his father-in-law IS younger than he is. . . . George Raft, the patent-leather dream prince, is a grandfather. . . .

Jack Benny, who has been kidding his dad for years about his tailor shop, gave him a platinum tie pin shaped like a miniature tailor's scissors for Father's day.

Al Jolson, who made "Sonny Boy" practically a national anthem, has an adopted child, but none of his own. . . . The one daddy around town that everyone treats like a baby is Victor Moore, simply because he's so sweet. . . . Tommy Manville usually refers to himself as "Poppa."

* * *

Carol Bruce, the energetic young songstress in "Louisiana Purchase," has a nice-looking father who is a timid soul, lives in Brooklyn and seldom invades Times Square. His two trips to Broadway, to visit his daughter, caused him great embarassment.

The first time, he dropped in at the Midnight Sun, where she was singing, and asked his daughter to join his table. It was during the "No Mixing With Customers" police campaign and he was nearly thrown out of the place for sitting with his own child.

The other night he dropped backstage at the show to see her, and the stage doorman, with a cynical ha-ha, told him to scram. Nothing would convince him the gentleman was Miss Bruce's father.

* * *

Among the Hollywood heartthrobs who answer to calls of "daddy" are Gary Cooper, Leslie Howard, Don Ameche, and Dick Powell, and the movie producers long ago relinquished the old saw that if a glamor-boy became a father no one would pay money to see him any more. . . . Tyrone Power is the only son of a great actor who equalled his father's success under the same name the dad first made famous. . . . Lots of girls followed in their papa's thespian footprints: Constance, Joan and Barbara Bennett (daughters of Richard); Paula and Dorothy Stone (daughters of Fred); and Dolores and Helene Costello (daughters of Maurice).

* * *

"Sorrel and Son" was the best father-and-son picture ever filmed. . . . Lewis (Judge Hardy) Stone is, cinematically speaking, the favorite father of American boyhood, but Andy Hardy's old man, in private life, has no sons—just two daughters.

Mickey Rooney's real father, Joe Yule, who used to star on the burlesque bills, was paid a huge sum by M. G. M. to retire from the strip tease circuit while his son was being featured in family program pictures. . . .

Frank Craven was in Hollywood making "Our Town" while his son, John, emoted in the juvenile lead of "Two On An Island" this season. . . . Ed Wynn didn't appear on the stage this semester, but his son Keenan made the customers laugh at his comic antics in "Two for the Show."

* * *

There are few "stage fathers." Current outstanding one is Gertrude Neisen's papa, who is her personal manager and handles all her business affairs. . . . All stage door men are called "Pop" by the chorines. . . . Johnny Broderick, the toughest cop on Broadway, grows as gentle as a June breeze when he talks about his children.

The first stories I ever read in a newspaper were written by my dad, and I never read any better.

HIRES 21 FOR CITY SCHOOLS

Board Fills Posts In High School Cafeteria Staffs; 7 Teachers Named.

Seven teachers and 14 cafeteria employes for Senior high school and the two junior high schools were hired last night by the Mansfield board of education. Three of the teachers and most of the cafeteria workers were in the school system last year.

G. W. Hypes and H. R. Kinker were given renewal contracts to teach at Senior high school, while Miss Lois Baughman was retained at Bowman school.

New teachers who were employed are Miss Bette Lake and Miss Margaret Evans, both cadets or apprentice teachers last year; Mrs. Dorothy Stewart Thorne, who will teach home economics at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school, and Miss Mary J. McCormick, instructor in the sight-saving school.

The board accepted the resignations of Miss Frances Conn, Bowman school, and Miss Ruth Zelenka, Johnny Appleseed Junior high teacher, both of whom resigned to be married.

Employed for the cafeteria staffs were Mrs. Frances B. Hypes, manager; Mrs. Jennie Berry, head cook; Mrs. Bertha Motson, cook; Mrs. Margaret Sisco, cook; Mrs. Josephine Huff, Mrs. Bertha Grandon, Mrs. Marguerite Rudolph, Mrs. Mabel Garinger, and Mrs. Leora Bender, helpers; Mrs. Pauline Hauserman, part-time secretary; Elaine Hellinger, secretary; William Bortscheller and Stephen Maurer, porters, and Mrs. Ula P. BOARD APPROVES REMODELING PROJECT AT HEDGES SCHOOL

The Mansfield board of education last night approved architects' plans for remodeling the Hedges school building to include a combined meeting and recreation hall at a cost of about $8,500.

The board will ask for bids on the project immediately and they will be opened July 18. Work is expected to be started soon after that date so that it can be completed by the time school opens in September.

The improvement has been considered by the school board since the Hedges Junior high pupils were transferred last winter to the new Johnny Appleseed building, leaving unused space in the Hedges building. Plans for the project were drawn up by Althouse and Jones, Mansfield architects.

Seating about 500 persons, the auditorium-gymnasium will be on the first floor at the southwest corner of the building. It will have a balcony and will occupy two classrooms and two cloakrooms.

Cost of the work will be paid entirely from school funds. There will be no request for PWA help.

It was pointed out in approving the project that the Hedges building has no adequate meeting room or gymnasium and that two unoccupied classrooms can be converted to a satisfactory hall at relatively small cost.

The board approved change orders last night adding about $2,200 to the cost of the new John Simpson building to pay for equipment and necessary changes in construction that were not shown in the original plans. The work was done by the W. C. Hawkins Construction company, Cleveland, which built the new structure.

Also approved was the purchase of a metal placque to direct visitors to the board of education quarters and administration offices in the John Simpson building. The placque, costing $39, will be placed at the eastern entrance of the building. A bulletin board will also be put up inside the entrance.

HEARING SET

School Board to Hold Public Meeting on Budget July 15.

With work on the Mansfield schools' budget for 1941 due to get under way within a few days, the board of education last night set its next regular meeting date, July 15, for a hearing on the budget.

The hearing will be conducted in the board's headquarters in the John Simpson building preceding the board meeting. If there are no protests, the budget will be adopted at the session.

John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board, reported at last night's meeting that a $412 insurance claim, covering damages to the Senior high school movie machine in a fire last April 10, had been paid. The flames were confined to the motion picture booth. The insurance payment was made by the Western Insurance Adjusting company.

4-YEAR FUGITIVE BACK IN O.S.R.

Former Trusty Caught in Chillicothe, Brought Back to Prison.

An Ohio State reformatory trusty who escaped from the Sandusky honor camp nearly four years ago was back in the institution today following his return from Chillicothe by reformatory guards.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke identified the fugitive as Francis Badertsch, 26, of Allen county, who fled the honor farm Nov. 1, 1936 after serving little more than three years of a one to 20 year term for robbery. Badertsch was committed July 24, 1933.

ATTEND MEETING

Mansfielders Back From Nature Club Session In Columbus.

Two members of the Mansfield Nature club attended the fifth annual meeting of the League of Ohio Nature clubs Saturday and Sunday in Columbus.

They were Miss Leona Miles, president, and H. M. Spandau, a member. Also attending the meeting was Mrs. Spandau, president of the Audubon society. Nature trips in and near Columbus was arranged for the visitors.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If revenge is as sweet as they say it is, there are several actors in town who should skip their desserts—they've had their fill of sweetness.

They are the exiles, voluntary and otherwise, from Nazi German ideology, fled to Hollywood to patch their lives and fortunes and now given opportunity to hit back at the oppressors, even if only through the screen.

You see them in one or another of the anti-Nazi pictures Hollywood has made, or is making.

You will know Lionel Royce well before this screen year is over. You saw or will see him in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," now being re-issued as a timely anti-"fifth column" subject. Royce plays the brutal, domineering Gestapo agent. In "Four Sons" he is Herr Sturm, the Czech villager who cooperates with the German infiltration and considers it a "great day" when Hitler takes over. You will see him again in "I Married a Nazi," again as a swastika devotee.

* * *

Royce, a hulky, kindly gentleman, once had his own theatrical company in Germany, was honored in Berlin for 12 years. With Hitler's accession he was forced to flee to Austria, and there he was born in a hoax which still burns the Gestapo's ears. Some day a good movie can be filmed with this hoax as a basis.

Reason for his flight was Royce's slight strain of "non-Aryan" blood. While hiding in the Alps, Royce grew a beard, dyed it and his hair blonde. Then, with the aid of friends in Vienna, he permitted himself to be "discovered" on the Austrian stage. Critics, hearing of his gifts, came from Nazi-land to hail him as the perfect type of "Nordic Aryan peasant" and acclaim his acting genius. When Royce unmasked himself, there was trouble not from the Austrian government but from German pressure. The Austrians assessed penalties but remitted them, which gave Royce time to escape to America.

Albert Basserman, often called "German's greatest actor," is a voluntary exile. From a great start in "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," he has gone to roles in "Foreign Correspondent" and "Escape" (which concerns Nazi Germany) and now is in "The Man from Fleet Street."

* * *

Waiter Tells of Shooting Three Men in Dice Game

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O.—(AP)—"Mike wouldn't let me have two bucks, so I shot him. The others—they was stool pigeons—I got them, too."

This was the explanation of William Sevastis, 55-year-old Greek waiter, why he shot and killed Mike Manos, his employer, and two other men last May 6 during a dice game, according to Patrolman George Helt of Martins Ferry.

Trial of Sevastis, charged with first degree murder, went into the second session today before a three-judge court of Common Pleas Judges Bernard Witten and Clifford Belt of Belmont county and C. D. Hayden of Knox county.

Yesterday, Helt related the story told by Sevastis after his arrest a short time after he went berserk in a Martins Ferry coffee house. A half-dozen witnesses of the shooting described the scene during which Sevastis killed Manos, Gust Gramatakis and Pete Lavanos and wounded Steve Provicas.

CHAPTER IV.

"Hi! Hello!" She raised up, and smiled happily.

Bob King laughed heartily then. "Just wanted to be sure you got in safely," he said.

"Oh. I didn't realize you'd ride all the way in, just to—to check up on us."

"That's okay. I had to come in anyhow. And I—"

"It's sweet of you," Rosemary dimpled at him. "Thanks."

"Glorece!" murmured Bob King, staring as if enraptured.

"What?"

"I said—I just said it's great to see you safely in town, I mean. I was—well, I was worried about you—you're so young and nice and everything you and your hus—the gentleman who—"

"Thanks, Mr. King. You really were a lifesaver."

"Por nada," Bob lapsed into a Spanish idiom, as any Arizonian is likely to do. "You heading for the coast, no doubt?"

"No. I'm stopping here. Or near here. For a short time."

"Say! You mean to tell me—?" Bob King's face brightened and he reached again to remove his hat, as if in greeting. He would have said more, in his enthusiasm, but Rosemary interrupted him.

"Oh there's Dr. Montgomery!" She pointed. "Good morning, Monty! How's everything?"

* * *

Bob turned to see the other man approaching. Dr. Montgomery, carefully dressed in a new outfit, stepped fastidiously over a pool of dirty black oil on the garage floor, and came forward smiling.

"Good morning! Good morning, Mr. King! It's a surprise to see you again, and a pleasant one, I am sure!"

"How are you?" Bob nodded, smiling noncommittally, his spirits sinking.

The mood or the atmosphere changed noticeably. Bob who had been very hearty and informal, lapsed into an oddly strained manner now, although he lacked nothing of courtesy.

In truth, the younger ranger was deeply concerned, and not at all sure of his ground. Never in all his life had he beheld so thoroughly beautiful a girl, he had been telling himself since before midnight. But there, confound it, was the man who was traveling with her, a rather young and cultured-looking man, carefully groomed this morning.

Bob could only conclude that Montgomery had some prior claim to Rosemary. He told himself, with an almost overwhelming sense of bitterness and gloom, that the two probably were engaged; or perhaps were artists or writers or something, already married and holding to their individual names for professional reasons. A lot of dude tourists who come to Arizona are like that.

Rosemary looked quizzically up at him.

Bob King, buried under a mass of soap, was mentally kicking himself. Eddie the barber had piled lather on his face until it made him look like snowcapped San Francisco Peak, visible out the barber shop window.

"Sure," Eddie agreed.

"I find a pretty girl, Eddie Prettiest that ever lived, see? Then I pitch right in to sell another man on the idea of hanging around her. I keep my competitor right on the scene! Damn!"

"Umm. Never mind, Eddie, you're a married man. What's it cost to support a wife?"

"Plenty," Eddie declared.

"Never heard of a girl like her," Bob talked on, ignoring Eddie's answer. "She's not little—but she's not big. Her cheeks are plump and pink, like a - - well, like a mountain apple in October. And dimples in 'em, Eddie, just like the dimple for the apple's stem. Glory!"

"You got it bad, ain't choo, Mr. King?"

"Shut up, Eddie. I want to think."

* * *

In truth, he was sadly disturbed. He had indeed been a fool, he told himself again. Elated at discovering that Rosemary and Dr. Montgomery weren't married or engaged, but were virtual strangers each other, he urged the professor to make his headquarters here at Flagstaff instead of going farther south. When, after much discussion, Dr. Montgomery had agreed, Bob suddenly realized his mistake. The archeologist, indebted to Rosemary for saving his life, would surely fall in love with her too! In fact, now that he thought about it, Bob had observed definite symptoms of Dr. Montgomery's attraction to Rosemary.

Bob sighed. He'd have to work harder.

He didn't know a thing about Rosemary Taylor, really. But that mattered nothing. He had known in two minutes that she was perfect!

The dimples, the extraordinarily deep dark eyes, had told him that much. The brown curls had verified it, and the musical laughter and general gaiety of her had verified it again. Rosemary was youth incarnate, feminine youth and charm, Rosemary. Rosemary Taylor. Even her name was charming. Her skin was fresh and pink. Not tanned like like well, like Sue McKee's, for instance. Sue practically lived outdoors. She never talked very much. Nor wore the chic, modish clothes like Rosemary.

He'd have to maneuver to keep Rosemary away from the professor, now that he had been foolish enough to keep the professor here. Why would a man let his enthusiasm for a region get the better of him, anyway? Bob had talked heartily of northern Arizona's attractions, tempting Dr. Montgomery especially with promises to show him prehistoric cliff dwellings and Indian mounds. Hospitality is all right, but when there is a girl a girl like Rosemary—

He had promised to meet Rosemary in half an hour and drive her out to the trading post she had inherited. Dr. Montgomery needed the day to see about his flood-wrecked automobile, to purchase a new outfit of clothing and write letters back home.

Bob left the barber shop feeling better. Indeed, he looked fine. Muscular and erect, as any ranger is, he was almost military in his khaki costume. The stiff-brimmed hat was set at just a slight angle -jaunty. His face was ruddy with health, his eyes bright blue. He hastened to keep his appointment on time.

"I believe you are not exaggerating," Rosemary admitted. "Goodness! It's wonderful!"

* * *

Nor was he. Here around them indeed was a scenic paradise. An incomparable region of heights and distances, cliffs and canyons and forests, sweeps of mountain ranges, and brilliant blue-sky after yesterday's rain.

Three miles from Flagstaff they swung around a curve and saw a buck leap across the roadway. In his wake were four does, graceful creatures bounding across a tiny meadow to form a living picture-book scene that left Rosemary enthralled. The high snowtipped peak of San Francisco mountain was a silent guardian, and patches of color in the far distance were vermillion cliffs.

"It's wonderful, Mr. King!" Rosemary declared, and meant it. "But I'm also excited about seeing my store."

"It's a nice place, all right," he nodded.

"I'm sure it must be nice. Is it large?"

"Yes. And it's a well-built place. I mean, it's not one of these two-bit shacks that sometimes pop up on a roadside, Miss Taylor. This is the real thing. You'll like it. Up-to-date. Modern in every way."

* * *

Rosemary nodded. She didn't speak again for several minutes. Nearing her trading post now, she just sat there envisioning it. She, a New York secretary, really owned a store! An expensive thoroughly modern store, Mr. King had just said.

Now it is true that Rosemary was guilty of careless thinking at this point, but it is also true that she was young. And a girl as well. An impulsive girl. She formed a mental picture of her trading post which—astonishingly—was a replica of New York's swankier Park avenue shops!

That is, she imagined it as a structure of plate glass and chromium. Without reasoning, but just picturing it vaguely, she saw a brilliant neon sign, a modernistic front-door design, deep plush-like floor coverings, and chairs and showcases of shining crome steel. Smartly dressed, sophisticated clerks.

Well, she could preside in there for a day or two, until she sold the place. Madame Taylor, proprietor! It sounded great. She could enjoy a bit of fun, and have a lot to tell her friends when she was back home again.

Riding along the paved highway now she was no longer conscious of the bordering trees, the massive pines and oaks and firs that patterned the sky and slipped by them in magnificent panorama. She was just deep in her own thoughts until Bob King suddenly swerved off the road and spoke.

"Well, here she is!" he announced, heartily.

"Hunh?" Rosemary looked out. "Here who is?"

Seconds passed before she realized he meant it.

"For goodness sakes!" she murmured then.

"Nice place," Bob said, leaving the seat. "I told you so."

Nice place . . . Nice place!

She looked quickly at him. No, he was not teasing her. This was all real. Nice place!

* * *

It looked like a fort. A stockade out of a book about the Revolutionary war. Something the Mohawk Indians had attacked years ago up on the Hudson river.

It was made of logs. Big skinned logs. Unpainted.

Plate glass and chromium? Ha! There was a wide front porch, clear across. Halves of pine logs formed railings. Pine posts, with a few limb stubs left on, were hanging with Navajo Indian rugs, bridles and canteens, spurs and other assorted western merchandise.

A black child, maybe three years old and as naked as sin, stared at Bob and Rosemary a moment, then dashed around the house like a frightened animal.

* * *

Smoke curled lazily from a rear chimney. Trees three feet thick and three centuries old hovered green-clad arms maternally over the long building and formed a rustling tapestry of green behind it. From a very high limb hung a vine stem as big as Rosemary's arm, a grape vine probably, and it made a natural swing that literally invited one to play. Three bluejays chased from a limb through the foliage and down under the porch roof, thence swiftly on across the roadway, flying and fluttering and railing at one another in high merriment.

Rosemary took all this in somewhat subconsciously, swallowing hard and looking desperately intent. Bob King turned quizzically to her and spoke.

"All right, eh? Want to get out?"

THEATERS

Two Men and a Girl.

"Torrid Zone" which is showing at the Ohio theater, has its setting down Mexico way. Pat O'Brien is the big boss for a fruit company that owns most of that territory, making him the virtual boss of the locality. He and his plantation manager, James Cagney, have a standing feud, and Ann Sheridan adds to the mutual dislike. Andy Devine adds to the story by his ever ready wit and comedy portrayals.

* * *

Murders Aboard Ship.

Three baffling murders occurred on the last lap of a "round the world" cruise. The phantom strangler was still at large though Detective Charlie Chan was on duty aboard the ship. All this happens in "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise" which is showing at the Madison theater beginning Wednesday. Sidney Toler plays the title role, with a supporting cast of Marjorie Weaver, Lionel Atwill and many others. The co-feature is "Hidden Gold," with William Boyd in the lead.

* * *

Gay Romance With Magician.

Beginning today at the Majestic theater will be "Eternally Yours," starring Loretta Young, C. Aubrey Smith, David Niven and Hugh Herbert. The story is of the Great Arturo, a gay and witty magician and his young wife, Anita. This romantic couple travel to all the capitals of Europe where they lead a hectic life. Being a showman at heart, he does not realize his wife wants the simpler life, until she leaves him. The co-feature is "Allegheny Uprising," with Claire Trevor and John Wayne.

* * *

Reality to Fancy.

Walt Disney's second full length technicolor picture, "Pinocchio," is showing at the Park theater. The characters required to tell the story range from reality to fancy. The woodcarver and the puppeteer are human, and Jiminy Cricket plays the lead in the animal figures. Pinocchio is a doll created by the wood carver who turns into a real little boy. As a second feature the management presents "The Magnicifent Fraud," with Akim Tamiroff in the lead.

Marital Troubles.

Roland Young, Mary Boland, Joel McCrea and Nancy Kelly have the leading roles in the comedy film "He Married His Wife" which opens Wednesday at the Ritz theater. Joel plays the role of Nancy's ex-husband, who gets tired of paying her alimony and decides to marry her off to Lyle Talbot, an old beau of hers. Going to the serious mood is "Women Without Names" which is the co-feature. Ellen Drew, Judith Barrett and many others are in the cast.

Did "Diamond Jim" Have Stomach Or Ulcer Pains?

It is hardly likely that Diamond Jim Brady could have eaten so voraciously if he suffered after-eating pains. Sufferers who have to pay the penalty of stomach or ulcer pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At good drug stores everywhere.

They can't get along without it!

The life we lead, the work we do, the pleasures we enjoy are materially influenced by what's going on in the world. It's only natural, therefore, that reading the newspaper should be as much a part of everyday life as eating and sleeping.

Most people, as a matter of fact, can't get along without it . . . and practically everybody reads a newspaper every day, not only for the news it brings, but for the interpretation it presents, the pictures it prints, the entertainment it provides, the advice it offers.

Small wonder that the newspaper should be the forceful, profitable advertising medium that it is. Small wonder, too, that today, when the news plays so important a part in people's lives, the newspaper is an even more vital and profitable advertising medium than ever before.

Legislature Goes Into High Gear on Bricker Program

$2,800,000 RELIEF PLAN BEING RUSHED

Leaders Predict Enactment In Four Days; Ballot Split Also Considered.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Working at top speed, legislative committees today recommended for passage by the Ohio general assembly bills to separate the national and state tickets at the Nov. 5 election and to appropriate $2,800,000 for relief and old age pensions.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio legislature moved quickly into high gear today and administration leaders predicted that Gov. John W. Bricker's six-point program, including $2,800,000 for relief and old age pensions, would be enacted within four days.

Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert said the senate could complete its work by tonight if the house kept pace. The house, however, with four times the senate membership, will need at least three days and maybe four, Speaker William M. McCulloch said.

Five bills, introduced as the Republican-controlled general assembly convened in special session last night, were taken up in committee meetings today. They were:

Appropriating $1,460,387.95 for poor relief, to be distributed among the local governments on a ratio of their expenditures in the last six months of 1939; and making available an additional $833,333.33 for relief loans to cities and counties.

Appropriating $2,000,000 (half of it federal funds) for old age pensions during the remainder of the year, which on the present scale of $23 a month average payments, would permit the addition of at least 14,500 persons to the rolls;

Creating a special ballot for the presidential and vice presidential candidates in the November election, thus severing them from the state ballot;

Increasing the maximum old age pension payments from $30 a month to $40, effective March 31, 1941, although the measure made no provision for the necessary additional funds, and amending the aid for dependent children act to release for use between $800,000 and $900,000 in federal funds now "frozen" in the state treasury.

The sixth bill, enabling local governments to fund poor relief deficits incurred before Jan. 1, was recommended for passage by the senate taxation committee.

While leaders of the senate Republicans reported complete harmony, house Republicans were not so fortunate.

Some of the nine Republican representatives from Hamilton county (Cincinnati) were piqued because their fellow townsman, Rep. William H. Deddens, was not chosen speaker pro-tem succeeding J. Harry McGregor of West LaFayette, now in congress.

Although Deddens practically had been conceded the position in informed quarters, a first-term "dark horse" from the rural bloc—Rep. Harold W. Houston (R-Champaign)—was chosen. The vote was Houston 56, Deddens 23.

Should the Hamilton county Republicans register their indignation by voting against the ballot-splitting bill, they might prevent its enactment as an emergency measure effective immediately. In this event, the Democrats could obtain a referendum and keep it from going into effect for the Nov. 5 election.

Democrats indicated they would attempt to amend the administration's ballot bill and divorce also the candidates for U. S. senator from the state ticket.

When members of the Mansfield board of education arrived at the John Simpson school for their meeting last night they found tiny envelopes containing three pennies at their places around the table. The "mail" was from John H. Eisaman, board clerk, who used the novel method to reimburse the members for the additional postage they had to pay to get the minutes of their last meeting out of the postoffice. Eisaman underestimated the weight of the minutes and didn't put enough stamps on the envelopes. His tiny envelopes carrying the pennies were replicas of regular envelopes with stamps, postmark and all the trimmings. They were made by Eiseman's secretary, Miss Mary Holmes.

Droves of fishermen have concentrated on the Charles Mill dam area in search of the tricky bass, since open season on that fish opened Sunday. Fishing in the rapids south of the dam, anglers have come out in such numbers that they scarcely have enough room to cast their flies into the middle of the stream. Fishing is permitted in the Charles Mill area south of the concrete dam. Waters north of the dam are still closed to anglers.

There was a lot of activity at the Red Cross chapter office this morning as boxes of new garments were being packed for shipment to Europe. They were sweaters and women's and girls' dresses and 25 layettes, each with 32 pieces. Every garment was having a tiny Red Cross emblem sewed into it and on a tag is written "Richland County Chapter." Every garment is inspected and then arranged in groups as to sizes. Mrs. George Hughes, chairman of inspecting and packing, and Mrs. William Roth, were doing the work today. In the lot are the infants clothes that were made by Mrs. L. W. Olson and her volunteer workers, who are working independently of the Red Cross, but turning their completed garments over to the Red Cross for distribution.

BREAKS WINDOW

Thief Hurls Brick, Then Steals Cameras Valued at $103.

Police today were searching for a thief who hurled a brick through a plate glass window at the Buell-Kraft studio, 48 West Third street, last night and carried off three cameras valued at $103.

The theft was discovered shortly before 5 a. m. today by a passerby who notified police of the broken window. Officers said they found a paving brick among several moving picture projectors which were overlooked by the thief.

C. A. Buell, proprietor, said an inventory revealed that two movie cameras and a kodak, valued at $103 had been taken. He estimated damage to the window at $50.

HIRES 21 FOR CITY SCHOOLS

Board Fills Posts In High School Cafeteria Staffs; 7 Teachers Named.

Seven teachers and 14 cafeteria employes for Senior high school and the two junior high schools were hired last night by the Mansfield board of education. Three of the teachers and most of the cafeteria workers were in the school system last year.

G. W. Hypes and H. R. Kinker were given renewal contracts to teach at Senior high school, while Miss Lois Baughman was retained at Bowman school.

New teachers who were employed are Miss Bette Lake and Miss Margaret Evans, both cadets or apprentice teachers last year; Mrs. Dorothy Stewart Thorne, who will teach home economics at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school, and Miss Mary J. McCormick, instructor in the sight-saving school.

The board accepted the resignations of Miss Frances Conn, Bowman school, and Miss Ruth Zelenka, Johnny Appleseed Junior high teacher, both of whom resigned to be married.

Employed for the cafeteria staffs were Mrs. Frances B. Hypes, manager; Mrs. Jennie Berry, head cook; Mrs. Bertha Motson, cook; Mrs. Margaret Sisco, cook; Mrs. Josephine Huff, Mrs. Bertha Grandon, Mrs. Marguerite Rudolph, Mrs. Mabel Garinger, and Mrs. Leora Bender, helpers; Mrs. Pauline Hauserman, part-time secretary; Elaine Hellinger, secretary; William Bortscheller and Stephen Maurer, porters, and Mrs. Ula P. Karl, cook.

BOARD APPROVES REMODELING PROJECT AT HEDGES SCHOOL

The Mansfield board of education last night approved architects' plans for remodeling the Hedges school building to include a combined meeting and recreation hall at a cost of about $8,500.

The board will ask for bids on the project immediately and they will be opened July 18. Work is expected to be started soon after that date so that it can be completed by the time school opens in September.

The improvement has been considered by the school board since the Hedges Junior high pupils were transferred last winter to the new Johnny Appleseed building, leaving unused space in the Hedges building. Plans for the project were drawn up by Althouse and Jones, Mansfield architects.

Seating about 500 persons, the auditorium-gymnasium will be on the first floor at the southwest corner of the building. It will have a balcony and will occupy two classrooms and two cloakrooms.

Cost of the work will be paid entirely from school funds. There will be no request for PWA help.

It was pointed out in approving the project that the Hedges building has no adequate meeting room or gymnasium and that two unoccupied classrooms can be converted to a satisfactory hall at relatively small cost.

The board approved change orders last night adding about $2,200 to the cost of the new John Simpson building to pay for equipment and necessary changes in construction that were not shown in the original plans. The work was done by the W. C. Hawkins Construction company, Cleveland, which built the new structure.

Also approved was the purchase of a metal placque to direct visitors to the board of education quarters and administration offices in the John Simpson building. The placque, costing $39, will be placed at the eastern entrance of the building. A bulletin board will also be put up inside the entrance.

HEARING SET

School Board to Hold Public Meeting on Budget July 15.

With work on the Mansfield schools' budget for 1941 due to get under way within a few days, the board of education last night set its next regular meeting date, July 15, for a hearing on the budget.

The hearing will be conducted in the board's headquarters in the John Simpson building preceding the board meeting. If there are no protests, the budget will be adopted at the session.

John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board, reported at last night's meeting that a $412 insurance claim, covering damages to the Senior high school movie machine in a fire last April 10, had been paid. The flames were confined to the motion picture booth. The insurance payment was made by the Western Insurance Adjusting company.

HEAR RUMORS OF AGREEMENT BY TAFT, DEWEY

Leaders Say Third Term Dealt Heavy Blow by French Capitulation.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Fresh talk of the Republicans nominating a "dark horse" swept the capital today despite rumors that the forces of Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft and New York racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey will reach an agreement before a ballot is taken at the Philadelphia convention.

Republican leaders meanwhile predicted that the capitulation of France would end President Roosevelt's third term ambitions. Some Republicans declared that the president would not seek a third term while others said he might but would face certain defeat in November. They argued that the president had staked his foreign policy too heavily on an Anglo-French victory.

The Taft-Dewey alliance rumors circulated without sanction from either candidate. In fact, certain Taft and Dewey followers denied the rumors, each side asserting that their favorite will be nominated without help from his rival. The rumors appeared to be based upon the fact that Taft and Dewey together are expected to control more than 700 delegates, more than enough to nominate the 1940 Republican ticket.

In the talk of a "dark horse" compromise, there was no agreement. Rep. Bruce Barton, of New York, who will second the nomination of Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive, said that his favorite was gaining in strength day by day.

The GOP attack on the president meanwhile was led by Sen. Townsend (Del.), and Reps. Fish and Tinkham (N.Y.).

Fish said: "I think Roosevelt's third term ambitions have been knocked into a cocked hat. No president ever had a greater opportunity to promote peace, but he has missed the bus."

Tinkham said: "Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Hull's policy of political intervention in every quarrel in Europe and Asia is finished. So are Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull."

DIES AT AGE 71

Miss Clara Motz Was Civic Leader In Loudonville.

LOUDONVILLE — Miss Clara Motz, 71, civic leader and teacher, died Monday night at her home West Main street, after a lingering illness. She was born in New Lexington, March 20, 1869.

She was graduated from the Loudonville schools in 1888 and entered the teaching profession. She contributed articles to educational periodicals relative to her work as primary instructor. She taught in Loudonville and Akron. Until a year ago she wrote for the Loudonville Advocate, and was in charge of the children's hour at the public library.

She was also a former president of the Progress club of Loudonville.

Surviving are a brother, Albert of Columbus and a sister, Miss Josephine Motz, of Loudonville, and three nieces.

Funeral services will be held at the Zion Lutheran church Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. H. Kuhlman will be in charge. Burial will be in Londonville cemetery.

4-YEAR FUGITIVE BACK IN O.S.R.

Former Trusty Caught in Chillicothe, Brought Back to Prison.

An Ohio State reformatory trusty who escaped from the Sandusky honor camp nearly four years ago was back in the institution today following his return from Chillicothe by reformatory guards.

Supt. Arthur L. Gladden identified the fugitive as Francis Baderisch, 26, of Allen county, who fled the honor farm Nov. 1, 1936 after serving little more than three years of a one to 20 year term for robbery. Baderisch was committed July 24, 1933.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

My Heart Belongs to Daddy (Patter on Paters)

Broadway had special reason to celebrate Father's day this year, for fathers played a lively part in the goings on around Times Square during the past season, and those involved deserve at least a few dazzling cravats tossed in their direction.

"Life With Father" was certainly the most satisfying comedy of the season, thanks largely to Howard Lindsay's portrayal of the All Time Papa of All Time, Andy Hardy and his dad were the favorite celluloid citizens of the Capitol moviegoers; and John Barrymore titilated paying and non-paying audiences with his enactment of father roles—on stage in "My Dear Children," off-stage in his father-oh-father-come-home-with-me-now scene with his daughter Diana in a nightclub.

* * *

All kinds of things happened to the daddies this season. Father Walter Houston was directed by his son John in "Passenger To Bali." . . . George M. Cohan and his daughter Mary continued the biggest father-and-daughter feud on Broadway when she insisted on singing in a night spot and topped off this flaunting of his disapproval by eloping. . . .

Sherman Billingsley, who spent every night in the year watching the debutantes and the glamour girls slink in and out of his Stork Club, could be observed almost any afternoon strolling 53rd st. with his three-year-old daughter, showing her the sights in the pet shop windows. . . .

* * *

The National Father's Day Committee, after research that left it simply limp, was forced to admit that there was in existence no painting of a father that would serve as a national trademark like Whistler's Mother. They might whip one up—a panoramic shot of Eddie Cantor and his five daughters and Bing Crosby and his four sons would make a nice mural. . . . The most glamorous fathers around town are Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Tony Duke, William Rhinelander Stewart, Tony Bliss and Marshall Field, Jr., of cafe society.

* * *

George Jessel's step-father looks younger than he does, and his father-in-law IS younger than he is. . . . George Raft, the patent-leather dream prince, is a grandfather. . . .

Jack Benny, who has been kidding his dad for years about his tailor shop, gave him a platinum tie pin shaped like a miniature tailor's scissors for Father's day.

Al Jolson, who made "Sonny Boy" practically a national anthem, has an adopted child, but none of his own. . . . The one daddy around town that everyone treats like a baby is Victor Moore, simply because he's so sweet. . . . Tommy Manville usually refers to himself as "Poppa."

* * *

Carol Bruce, the energetic young songstress in "Louisiana Purchase," has a nice-looking father who is a timid soul, lives in Brooklyn and seldom invades Times Square. His two trips to Broadway, to visit his daughter, caused him great embarassment.

The first time, he dropped in at the Midnight Sun, where she was singing, and asked his daughter to join his table. It was during the "No Mixing With Customers" police campaign and he was nearly thrown out of the place for sitting with his own child.

The other night he dropped backstage at the show to see her, and the stage doorman, with a cynical ha-ha, told him to scram. Nothing would convince him the gentleman was Miss Bruce's father.

* * *

Among the Hollywood heartthrobs who answer to calls of "daddy" are Gary Cooper, Leslie Howard, Don Ameche, and Dick Powell, and the movie producers long ago relinquished the old saw that if a glamor-boy became a father no one would pay money to see him any more. . . . Tyrone Power is the only son of a great actor who equalled his father's success under the same name the dad first made famous. . . . Lots of girls followed in their papa's thespian footprints: Constance, Joan and Barbara Bennett (daughters of Richard); Paula and Dorothy Stone (daughters of Fred); and Dolores and Helene Costello (daughters of Maurice).

* * *

"Sorrel and Son" was the best father-and-son picture ever filmed. . . . Lewis (Judge Hardy) Stone is, cinematically speaking, the favorite father of American boyhood, but Andy Hardy's old man, in private life, has no sons—just two daughters.

Mickey Rooney's real father, Joe Yule, who used to star on the burlesque bills, was paid a huge sum by M. G. M. to retire from the strip tease circuit while his son was being featured in family program pictures. . . .

Frank Craven was in Hollywood making "Our Town" while his son, John, emoted in the juvenile lead of "Two On An Island" this season. . . . Ed Wynn didn't appear on the stage this semester, but his son Keenan made the customers laugh at his comic antics in "Two for the Show."

* * *

There are few "stage fathers." Current outstanding one is Gertrude Neisen's papa, who is her personal manager and handles all her business affairs. . . . All stage door men are called "Pop" by the chorines. . . . Johnny Broderick, the toughest cop on Broadway, grows as gentle as a June breeze when he talks about his children.

The first stories I ever read in a newspaper were written by my dad, and I never read any better.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If revenge is as sweet as they say it is, there are several actors in town who should skip their desserts—they've had their fill of sweetness.

They are the exiles, voluntary and otherwise, from Nazi German ideology, fled to Hollywood to patch their lives and fortunes and now given opportunity to hit back at the oppressors, even if only through the screen.

You see them in one or another of the anti-Nazi pictures Hollywood has made, or is making.

You will know Lionel Royce well before this screen year is over. You saw or will see him in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," now being re-issued as a timely anti-"fifth column" subject. Royce plays the brutal, domineering Gestapo agent. In "Four Sons" he is Herr Sturm, the Czech villager who cooperates with the German infiltration and considers it a great day when Hitler takes over. You will see him again in "I Married a Nazi," again as a swastika devotee.

* * *

Royce, a hulky, kindly gentleman, once had his own theatrical company in Germany, was honored in Berlin for 12 years. With Hitler's accession he was forced to flee to Austria, and there he was here in a hoax which still burns the Gestapo's ears. Some day a good movie can be filmed with this hoax as a basis.

Reason for his flight was Royce's slight strain of "non-Aryan" blood. While hiding in the Alps, Royce grew a beard, dyed it and his hair blonde. Then, with the aid of friends in Vienna, he permitted himself to be "discovered" on the Austrian stage. Critics, hearing of his gifts, came from Nazi-land to hail him as the perfect type of "Nordic Aryan peasant" and acclaim his acting genius. When Royce unmasked himself, there was trouble not from the Austrian government but from German pressure. The Austrians assessed penalties but remitted them, which gave Royce time to escape to America.

Albert Basserman, often called "German's greatest actor," is a voluntary exile. From a great start in "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," he has gone to roles in "Foreign Correspondent" and "Escape" (which concerns Nazi Germany) and now is in "The Man from Fleet Street."

* * *

Felix Bressart, a refugee who was introduced hilariously in "Ninotchka," continues his Hollywood career—and not the least of his work has been in "Escape" and "Foreign Correspondent."

Red Birds Topple Mansfield, 8 to 3

Cincy Calls Walters for Night Game

Bucky Will Be Trying for His 10th Victory.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)— Riding a new victory wave, the Cincinnati Reds were doing business from their old stand at the head of the National League today as they prepared for a night tilt with the Phils.

* * *

Because they like the top spot and the ease with which tables are being turned in the senior circuit, the Rhinelanders assigned Bucky Walters, their ace hurler, to toss it out with Hugh Mulcahy for Philadelphia.

* * *

It will be Walters' fourth try for his tenth victory but early in the season he reeled off nine straight triumphs. Mulcahy has won six, lost five games.

The turn of events which put the Reds out in front was their 6-2 trouncing of the Phils yesterday and a Cardinal defeat of the Dodgers, still shaken by the twin trimming at the hands of the Rhinelanders Sunday. It was the Cardinal's fifth straight triumph, the third in three days for Cincinnati.

Shortstop Eddie got his first major league home run with a pair of mates aboard in the second. Morrie Arnovich, who the Reds obtained from the Phils in a trade for Johnny Rizzo and a reported $15,000, made one of his two hits account for a Cincinnati run in the first. The Reds scored in each of the two final frames.

Moore, who had his fast one working, took over mound duties after a brief start by Johnny Vander Meer and allowed only two hits in eight rounds. The Phils got only three safeties, but the two Cincinnati pitchers gave up eight bases on balls. The The Phils scored in the first and second rounds.

Queen Again

Just like old times, eh, Miss Helen Jacobs? Sure 'tis, for Helen's queen of the eastern states women's tourney, held at Haverford, Pa. Quite a nice trophy, too, Miss Jacobs.

Terriers Outpoint Portsmouth Club

CANTON—(AP)—Four Canton pitchers walked 13 Portsmouth batters last night, but the Mid-Atlantic league leading Terriers managed to take the wild contest, 15 to 12 on 17 hits.

* * *

Nine Canton runs came in the first two innings, but Portsmouth nearly caught up with four-run rallies in the sixth and eighth.

Youngstown defeated Akron 6 to 2 at Akron in a game featured by First Baseman Jerry White's homer in the fifth with two on. The Charleston-Dayton game at Dayton was rained out.

Van Nostrand Charged With Loss: Plav Fostoria Here Tonight.

By CHARLES MARTIN

MANSFIELD lost a splendid opportunity to gain on the leaders in the Ohio State league race last night by dropping an 8 to 3 decision to the Red Birds at Fostoria.

With a revamped outfield, the Braves return to the Fairground at 8:15 p. m. today to meet the Red Birds before a "Ladies' " night gathering.

Manager Dewey Stover will send George Laurila to the hill as the Braves try to chalk up their third triumph in the four-game series.

The Braves started "Odie" Van Nostrand, the only southpaw on the mound staff, last night, but he had to be relieved by Bob Arnold before the second inning was over.

Arnold, however, couldn't silence the Red Bird bats all the way and in two innings the last-place Fostoria combine scored enough runs to annex the decision.

Pilot Stover mover Eldon Dice into right field and placed Gene Woodling in the center field position. Last night marked the first appearance of Hal Hundemer at second base since he suffered a leg injury in a contest at Lima Friday night.

Fostoria, paced by Winters, who had a double and single, collected four tallies in the second and added four more in the fourth. Arnold whitewashed the Red Birds the rest of the way, but the advantage was too much for the Braves to overcome.

Mansfield managed to dent the plate once in the sixth and added two markers in the eighth. Howard Beals led the Braves at the plate with a double and single, while Dick Morse added two bingles. Dice and Harry Seigbert collected a double apiece.

Mansfield plays at Fremont Wednesday night and will entertain the Green Sox at the Tappan Stove night at the Fairground Thursday at 8:15 p. m.

The Braves are still six games out of first place and three and a half behind the runner-up Pandas.

Fremont stopped the pace-making Findlay club's four-game winning streak with a 9 to 7 win, and Lima walloped Tiffin, 13 to 3, in the other circuit tilts last night.

Don Wentz, new catcher, who reported to the Brave wigwam started his first game behind the plate last night and turned in a capable performance.

Stover announced at noon today that Van Nostrand, who hails from Mt. Vernon, has been released and that Brave officials are seeking a new southpaw moundsman.

60 OFFICIALS ATTEND

CHICAGO—(AP)—President Carl L. Storck of the national football league has announced that about 60 officials would attend the league's annual instruction meeting in Cleveland July 27.

Arturo Godoy May Take Title Out of States

If Challenger Wins, Bouts To Be Fought In Argentina.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Al Weill wink is considerably more expressive than the far-famed Weill Weskit, although not quite as large.

* * *

He did it today when someone asked him about the possibility that Arturo Godoy would export the heavyweight championship to South America and defend it from there—provided he takes the title from Joe Louis in Yankee stadium Thursday night.

* * *

The situation offers the most interesting possibilities. Of course, first off the Chilean croucher would have to whip Louis—a job he didn't accomplish last February, and doesn't figure to come any closer to doing this time, if you believe those 1 to 5 odds on the Bomber. Still, the fight game is full of the screwiest situations.

* * *

Let's suppose he does. In that event, there's a very strong possibility fistiana's richest trinket will be put on the line outside of the United States for the first time since poor old Primo Carnera turned back the mild bid of Paulino Uzcudun in Rome seven years back.

* * *

The suggestion in the wink was that, instead of tangling with Louis again within 90 days, as he has already signed to do, Godoy would be willing to "blow" a $25,000 forfeit, ship to South America on the next boat and defend the crown in Argentina against such fellows as, say, Alberto Lovell or maybe Bicycle Bob Pastor.

Internal squabble between manager and ball players on the Cleveland baseball club ends quietly as rebellious players, who had called for Manager Oscar Vitt's scalp, publicly sign a statement announcing they wished to cancel off their demands referring to Vitt's resignation. The signed statement is shown here.

Indians, Pirates Triumph in Friendly House Junior Loop

THE Indians scored an 8 to 1 victory over the Pirates and the Giants outpointed the Dodgers 8 to 4 as the Friendly House Knot-Hole league entered its second round of competition at the Fairground yesterday.

* * *

On Wednesday, the Red Sox tackle the Yankees at 1 p. m. and the Cubs tangle with the Braves. Both games will be played at the Fairground.

* * *

Because they were rained out last Monday, the games scheduled in the league for that day will be played Friday. The scheduled contests for Friday are: Pirates vs. Dodgers at 1 p. m. and the Indians vs. Giants at 2:30, with both tilts taking place at the Fairground.

Second Annual Senior Golf Tourney Opens at Scioto

COLUMBUS—(AP)—This is the big week for Ohio's golfing veterans and the men and women who patronize public courses.

* * *

The second annual seniors' championship, with $1,500 in trophies at stake, will open Thursday at the Scioto Country club here, while the state public links tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday in Akron.

* * *

A field of 125 old timers, 50 or older, are expected to challenge Raleigh Lee of Columbus for the seniors crown he won last year with a 155 for 36 holes. Last year there were 77 contestants. Bob Stranahan and Claude Hauck of Toledo and V. V. Frey of Canton are rated as Lee's chief competitors. Eighteen holes of medal golf will be played Thursday and the final 18 Friday.

* * *

The 72-hole men's public links event on the Akron Firestone layout, in which 24 players qualify for the state amateur meet at Shaker Heights next week, will find Ken Peterson of Dayton defending his title. Three former champions seeking to repeat are Paul Segerlund of Akron, Tom Radican of Cleveland and Jam Krochmalny of Toledo.

* * *

The women's public links event will be 36 holes of medal play over the Akron Maplecrest course. Last year's winner, Miss Neoma Copic of Toledo, disqualified herself by joining a private club.

Mangan Suffers Broken Leg; Will be Out for Six Weeks

THE Mansfield Braves' catching department received a severe blow today when it was learned that Tim Mangan, first-string receiver at the opening of the season, will be out of the lineup for at least six weeks because of a broken leg suffered when practicing at the Fairground yesterday afternoon.

Mangan, who has been on the sidelines for three weeks with a split finger was getting into shape to return to the lineup. He and Tony Scotti, pitcher, were running around the bases and Mangan thought he turned his ankle circling third. The club physician, however, following an examination last night, announced today that the fibula bone in Mangan's left leg was broken.

Expect Decision on Muskingum District

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters said today that a definite decision on whether the conservation division will take over the big Muskingum conservancy district for hunting and fishing purposes will be arrived at before July 1.

Waters said a special meeting of the conservation council has been summoned for June 28. At that time, he said, another conference with conservancy district officials will be held. He hoped that points of issue could be ironed out before then so that a contract could be negotiated.

PETER ASTA ENTERED IN CANTON HARNESS RACES

CANTON—(AP)—Peter Asta, last year's Hambletonian winner, heads the list of entries from 20 states and Canada for the four-day Ohio short stripe and harness races opening here tonight.

Featuring the meet will be the Battle of Canton, [illegible] night with [illegible] the $1,000 free-for-all pace purse.

40TH ANNUAL REGATTA GETS UNDERWAY TODAY

POUGHKEEPSIE—(INS)— The crew that beats unbeaten Cornell will win the 40th annual intercollegiate regatta today.

On this point the thousands who have gathered in this sleepy little town and the hundred thousand others who will line both banks of the Hudson for the blue ribbon classic of the rowing world are agreed.

DON M'NEILL MATCHES STROKES WITH TALBERT

CHICAGO—(AP)—Don McNeill, recently graduated from Kenyon college at Gambier, O., matched strokes today with William Talbert of Cincinnati in a third round match of the national clay courts tennis tourney.

McNeill, third seeded, disposed of Edward Alloo of Berkeley, Cal., yesterday, 6-2, 6-4, 8-6, 6-1.

Need Two Additional Teams for New Loop

With teams set to swing into action, the second Mansfield Braves Knot Hole baseball league is expected to start next week. Mike Wentz, of the Friendly house, who is cooperating in organizing the league still needs two additional clubs. Any manager wishing to enter clubs may contact Wentz at the Friendly House. Caps for Knot Hole members may be obtained late this week at the Hi-Speed service stations, officials announced today.

Indians Play For 2nd Time Under Lights

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Dedicated to inner harmony after a player-management squabble, the Cleveland Indians make their second home appearance under the arcs this season against the Washington Senators tonight.

Al Smith, veteran southpaw who has hurled his way into one of three top places in Tribe pitching prominence, will seek his seventh victory of the season. He has been charged with only one loss.

The Nats nominated Dutch Leonard, master of the knuckle ball, to oppose Smith. Winner of 20 games last season, Leonard has a record of seven victories against five losses so far this year.

Outfielder Jeff Heath, whose abdominal wall was strained last Friday, will return to the lineup in a week or 10 days.

Church Clubs Chalk up Wins

Congregational, Lutherans Score Victories.

Congregational and First Lutheran softball clubs hung up victories yesterday as the Y. M. C. A. church league race got underway on Mansfield diamonds.

Play Postponed League Contests

Two postponed games in the Y. M. C. A. softball leagues will be played off tonight, as the Wescos tackle the Tavernettes and the Ohio Public Service club tangles with the Catholic Foresters.

* * *

The Wesco-Tavernette tilt will be played on Blue Goose field, while the OPS-Catholic Forester game will be played at Maple Lake.

* * *

On Wednesday, four games are scheduled in the Y. M. C. A. Club league: Isaly Dairys vs. Nick's Place at Tappan field. Barnes Manufacturing vs. Town Tavern at Liberty diamond. Service Cabs vs. Moose at North Lake park, and Kobackers vs. Tappans, Blue Goose.

SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT

Liberty Park baseball club suffered its first defeat of the season Sunday when the Galion outfit gained an 8 to 4 decision over the Mansfielders in an N. C. O. league tilt at Liberty park. Beer was on the mound for the Mansfielders, while Scott toed the rubber for the Galionites.

Cards Going Fast Again

St. Louis Has Won Five In a Row for Southworth; Topples Dodgers, 3 to 1.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS may not be going anywhere, but they're unquestionably going there fast.

Since Billy Southwork ascended (?) to the managership last week the club has won five games and hasn't been beaten. But the Cards were in such desperate circumstances to begin with that this spectacular streak hasn't been good enough to get them out of the National league's second division. The Chicago Cubs are five games ahead of them.

* * *

The Redbirds created quite a bit of commotion yesterday by blockading the Brooklyn Dodgers 3-1 and enabling the Cincinnati Reds to regain first place. Clyde Shoun made his first start of the season and went the complete route for the first time since 1938, holding Brooklyn to four hits.

* * *

While this was going on the Reds reaped a 6-2 triumph at Philadelphia to take a full game jump over the Dodgers and also shove the Phillies into the National league's cellar.

The New York Giants got back on the winning track and moved within a game of second place when Paul Dean continued his mastery over the Chicago Cubs by a 2-1 score. The durable Dean permitted no hits until the fifth and just six in the game.

The Boston Bees, who couldn't get any sort of pitching worthy of the name in the early part of the season, benefited from two six-hit performances by Bill Posedel and Al Piechota in sweeping a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and 5-1.

The stunt was sufficient to boost the Bees from eighth to sixth place in one hop. The American league had an idle day.

Winning Streak Wouldn't Hurt

Association Clubs Bunched In League Race.

(By Associated Press)

* * *

This doesn't apply to leading Kansas City or second place Minneapolis, since both play winning ball practically all the time. They're on top with only one percentage point separating them, yet the Millers are nine full games ahead of Louisville in third place.

* * *

Only five games separate Louisville and Toledo and St. Paul, tied for last place.

* * *!

Minneapolis moved to within a half game of the idle leaders last night with a 9 to 8 victory over Milwaukee. Toledo, after climbing out of the cellar Sunday, fell back in last night in losing to St. Paul, 13 to 12.

* * *

Columbus defeated Louisville, 3 to 2, in an afternoon game, thereby climbing to within a half game of third place.

CLASS A SCHEDULE

Schedule for today's matches in The News-Journal Class "A" golf league at the Possum Run is: Richland Printing vs. Long Bar. Barnes & Schmid Tires vs. Oaks club. Greystone Nite Club vs. Mansfield Athletic Supply, and Yuncker Brothers vs. Sloan's Drugs.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—In my set, where the mushky Jacksons speak only to the evil-eye Finkles, and the evil-eye Finkles speak only to the dumb Dan Morgans, and the dumb Dan Morgans speak only out of the corners of their mouths, it is considered not only "de trop" but even lousey for a fight promoter to take a guess at the probable winner of a bout he is handling.

* * *

So, there was many a raised scarred eyebrow when I walked into Mike Jacobs "strictly private" office yesterday, and, shrieking above the strictly private mob that was in the room, asked the promoter how he thought the Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy fight would out.

* * *

It was a faux pas, and the "set" wasted little time letting me know it was. Three or four of them let their feet fall from Mike's desk. Others got up and put on their coats for the first time in years. Still others tossed their cigarettes out of the window instead of onto the floor.

Only Promoter Jacobs kept his poise. With old world courtesy he beckoned me out of the room, bummed a smoke off me, and asked:

"Now what is it you wanta know?"

I said I wanted to know what he thought of Thursday's scrap between Louis and Godoy, and if he knew anything about Louis wanting to retire, and if it were true that the heavyweight champion of the world had become more interested in 12-cylinder cars, emerald green suits, fifteen course dinners, and diamond rings than he was in the business of prize-fighting.

"Nuts!" said Mike, lapsing into the French we always use in private conversation.

"I can't say Joe is going to win on Thursday, because I don't know," the promoter continued in French that showed not one trace of accent, "but I do know this. He hates Godoy. I also know that anything Joe hates is in danger of getting its head knocked off. I also know that he wants to fight Godoy again. I know this because Louis is the one who made the match.

* * *

"A week or two after the first fight with Godoy, Joe came to me and said 'get that there Godoy in there with me again. That's the fellow I wants to fight.'"

* * *

As for Joe wanting to quit the ring and settle down to a life of ease and smothered pork chops, Jacobs says there is no truth in the report.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP) — Strange sights: Cardinal pitchers actually going the distance these days. . . . They already have $45,000 in the till for Louis vs. Godoy and it may do a lot better than was at first thought. . . . Baron Boots Poffenberg, who traded beers for cheers, is collecting dividends down in the Southern association. He had won 10 games to June 12 and at that rate stands to win about 30 games for Nashville.

* * *

THAT MAN IS BACK.

"Old Fox" Clark Griffith sure likes to take the joy out of life for New York fans. . . . First, he predicts the Yanks won't win again. . . . Now he says Medwick coming to the Dodgers was just another baseball deal—that Joe isn't the difference between a pretty good team and a flag.

* * *

The Yanks have got to step on it, at that. Some of the dopsters have figured it out they'll have to win seven of every ten remaining games to cop for the fifth time in a row. . . . Clark Shaughnessy climbs way out on the limb for Norman Standlee, Stanford fullback—"As good as I've seen in 26 years of football," he says.

* * *

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Dom McDowell, Rapid City (S. D.) Journal: "Rollie Hemsley, Cleveland catcher who took the cure last winter, still holds forth in big style behind the plate, proving there can still be punch without rum."

* * *

The Southern association is a left-hand hitters' league—only four right-hand batters have won the championship in more than 10 years. . . . Mike Jacobs takes to one of the magazines (Liberty) this week to deny charges that he is a menace to boxing. . . . Explaining his failure to win his debut game with the Brooks, Curt Davis said: "For a few moments, I forgot where I was. . . . When the first two batters hit safely and no pitcher rushed out to relieve me, I became disconcerted and thought I was back in St. Louis."

* * *

INSURRECTION NOTE.

Well, we're glad the Cleveland uprising is over. . . . Personally, we never could decide whether Oscar was giving the Indians Vitts, or throwing too many himself.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Safety Service Director of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, at his office in the City Hall, until 12 o'clock, noon, Eastern Standard Time, July 3 1940, for the improvement of the Water Works Department by the construction of trenches and backfilling of trenches for water mains in Blae Burn, Overlook Road, Andover Road, Marlow Road, Coleman Road, Raleigh Ave., Winwood Drive, Jeanette Ave., Greenlawn Ave., Cleveland Ave., Overlook Ave., and Fairlawn Ave.

There will be approximately 4500 lin. ft of trenches to be excavated and backfilled.

Trenching to be of a sufficient width to permit construction of 4" and 6" water mains with 4½ ft cover to established street grades.

Each proposal must contain the name or names of the party or parties making the same and all parties interested therein and must be accompanied by a certified check in the sum of Fifty ($50 00) Dollars, on a solvent bank in the State of Ohio, as surety that if the proposal be accepted, a contract will be entered into.

No proposal will be entertained unless made on the forms furnished by the City Engineer and delivered to the office of the Service Safety Director, City Hall, previous to the time as herein specified

All checks are to be made payable to the Service Safety Director of the City of Mansfield, Ohio.

C. M CRAFTON,
Service-Safety Director.

SHERIFF'S SALE IN PARTITION

Howard H. Balliet Vs. Effie J. Collins, et al.

By virtue of an Order of Sale in Partition, issued from the Court of Common Pleas of Richland County, Ohio, and to me directed, I will offer at Public Sale, at the door of the Court House, in the City of Mansfield, Richland County, Ohio, on Saturday, July 20th, 1940 at 10:00 o'clock A. M. of said day, the following described lands and tenements:

SITUATED IN THE TOWNSHIP OF MONROE, COUNTY OF RICHLAND AND STATE OF OHIO:

Being the Northeast quarter of Section No. 9, Township 22, of Range 17, containing 160 acres of land; save and except therefrom a tract beginning at the north-east corner of said north-east quarter; thence running south with the section line 56 perches and 14 links to a post; thence west with a variation of 5 degrees 56 perches and 14 links to a post; thence north with a variation of 5 degrees 56 perches and 14 links to a post on the north boundary line of said quarter; thence east with the section line 56 perches and 14 links to the place of beginning, containing 20 acres of land; and save and except therefrom 7½ acres out of the north-west corner of said northeast quarter, belonging now to Sarah Smith and Mary Dickes, and being that part of said North-east quarter lying northwest of Tucker Road No. 355; and containing in the part to be conveyed 132½ acres more or less. ALSO a part of the North-west quarter of said Section No. 9, Township 22, Range 17, being all that part of said quarter lying southeast of Tucker Road No. 355 which road runs through said quarter in a northeasterly and southwesterly direction, containing 19¼ acres; and being the premises conveyed by Andrew Balliet et al, to James M. Balliet by deed dated Nov. 30, 1877, recorded in Vol. 72 at Page 216, except therefrom that part sold and conveyed by Kate Balliet as Administratrix with the will annexed of the estate of James M. Balliet, Deceased, to Silas Rummel by deed dated Dec. 12, 1896 recorded in Vol. 115 at Page 313, to which deeds, reference is hereby made. Containing in all 152 acres of land. Subject to a lease for planting of corn in 1940 to Dr. Carl Schmucker; purchaser of farm to be paid $2.00 per acre for each acre so planted by him.

Said premises located in improved highway, State Route No 39 about one-fourth mile east of Lucas.

Terms of sale: 20% Cash on day of sale and balance upon delivery of deed.

Appraised at $5 360 00, and cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of said value.

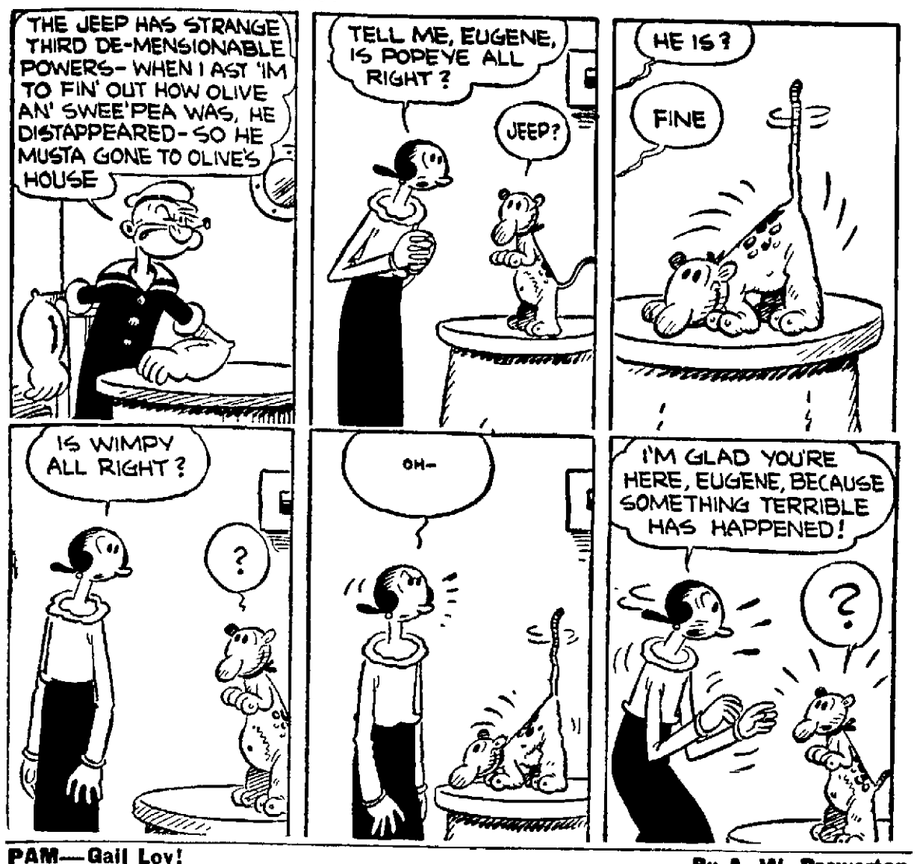
POPEYE— Lady in Distress?



THE JEEP HAS STRANGE THIRD DE-MENSIONABLE POWERS- WHEN I AST 'IM TO FIN' OUT HOW OLIVE AN' SWEE'PEA WAS, HE DISTAPPEARED- SO HE MUSTA GONE TO OLIVE'S HOUSE
TELL ME, EUGENE, IS POPEYE ALL RIGHT?
JEEP?
HE IS?
FINE
IS WIMPY ALL RIGHT?
OH-
I'M GLAD YOU'RE HERE, EUGENE, BECAUSE SOMETHING TERRIBLE HAS HAPPENED!

PAM—Gail Loy! By A. W. Brewerton

I JUST CAME BY, CLARE, TO TELL YOU I'VE ENGAGED MISS GAIL LOY, PAM'S NURSE, TO STAY WITH HER ALL THE TIME! — WILL THERE BE ROOM WHERE YOU LIVE NOW FOR THREE OF YOU?
OH, YES, DAVID — PLENTY ROOM!
PAM WILL BE PERFECTLY HELPLESS, WON'T SHE? — NEED SOME ONE WITH HER CONSTANTLY!
MISS LOY SEEMS SUCH A SWEET SORT OF PERSON — SO BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL — I THINK SHE'LL BE IDEAL TO KEEP PAM'S SPIRITS UP!
-AND I WANT YOU TO CALL ME GAIL- NOT MISS LOY!
YES, MISS LO- I MEAN-GAIL- AND YOU CALL ME PAM! — I'M SO GLAD YOU'RE GOING WITH ME!
DOCTOR, ISN'T THERE ANYTHING THAT MIGHT BE DONE — ANY — SPECIALIST CALLED IN? — ANY — TREATMENT THAT MIGHT BE TRIED? SPARE NO EXPENSE, IF THERE IS!
A GENTLE, SWEET, LADY - THE WIDOW MONROE; BUT DOCTOR BOOTH FINDS HER VERY PERSISTENT IN THE PRESENT INCIDENT!

STOCK PRICES ON UPGRADE IN TODAY'S MART

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Prices were on the upgrade in today's stock market despite persistence of war gloom in Wall Street.

The principal bullish prop, brokers said, remained in the outlook for heavy defense spending and augmented demands by the British for military materials.

Carrier loans, inactive for some time, were given a brisk push in the bond department; German and Italian dollar securities again were higher. Commodities were mixed. "Free" sterling resumed its fall.

Stocks ahead the greater part of the day included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Republic, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, DuPont, Loft and Allied Chemical.

Department of commerce figures disclosed that shipments to countries in the western Hemisphere during May more than offset the considerable recession in exports to Europe in that month. Total exports for May was $316,847,000 compared with $316,520,000 in April and $246,119,000 in the like 1939 period.

Two Dictators Meet To Set Peace Terms

Hitler And Mussolini Confer in Munich, Where France And England Once Agreed to 'Appeasement.'

that he had been back from the front since the start of his offensive against France which culminated in a French request for the terms of a "peace with honor."

Official axis sources said that Hitler and Mussolini did not want vengeance but the German press was filled with accounts of the Versailles treaty and statements that " . . . the same men who now are leading France sought with every word and act to rob the German people and its fighters, both living and dead, of their honor however they could."

Authorized German sources insisted that the meeting which opened at the Fuehrer house at 4 p. m., 55 minutes after Mussolini's arrival, was a purely Italo-German affair and that no foreign representatives would be present.

The actual Fuehrer house conference was attended by Hitler, Mussolini, Ribbentrop, Ciano and Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command.

It was assumed that in response to a plea for peace from a France now beaten to her knees, the two dictators would pore over a map of the French empire, which stretches into the remotest parts of the earth, and divide up generous portions of it among themselves, perhaps giving some to two other friendly, totalitarian countries—Spain and Japan.

There was no assurance, however, that the dictators would accept anything short of absolute surrender by France. France's plea for peace had not even brought a lull in the blitzkrieg. The official German news agency reported this morning that German troops were still charging through France; that they had captured the fortress of Belfort at the southern end of the Maginot line: the industrial city of Dijon, 170 miles southeast of Paris, and the great Schneider munitions works at Le Creusot, near Autun.

The conference was held at the Fuehrer house where, on Sept. 30, 1938, Hitler, Mussolini, Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Edouard Daladier of France had signed the historic Munich pact in which the democracies agreed, at the cost of a strip of Czechoslovakia, to attempt to appease the "have not" nations without a war.

The futility of this plan has been attested to in rapid succession by the conquests of all Czechoslovakia, Poland, Albania, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and now, France.

Munich was set for one of the greatest days in its history. Flag-drapers evidently had worked all night. The city was a riot of color. Factory workers were called from their jobs at 10:30 a. m. to march to their positions on the procession route.

(Hitler's last public appearance in Munich was the night of Nov. 8, 1939, when he escaped by only 10 minutes the explosion of a time bomb that wrecked the Nazi beer hall shrine, killed eight and wounded 63 persons.)

Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, published here and in Berlin, indicated that the terms offered France, while not vengeful, certainly would be harsh.

German spokesmen pointed out that in 1918, when Germany wanted an armistice, it had to wait from Oct. 3 to Nov. 11 for the Allies to agree to it, and that meanwhile the Allies had continued throwing their whole force at the German armies.

Last night's German war communique indicated that the blitzkrieg, which started against Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg 39 days ago, and against the French Somme line 12 days ago, still raged unabated in middle France. The capture of the fortress of Metz in the Maginot line was claimed. Germans were said to be bearing down on the Maginot triangle on all sides, and to be driving across the Loire river 70 miles below Paris in the vicinity of Orleans.

France Insists On Peace With Honor, Men Fight On

BULLETIN

TOKYO—(UP)—The Rightist Mei Rinkai organization, composed of retired army officers and extremists, today presented the Japanese government with a resolution advocating Japanese occupation of French Indo-China.

(By Associated Press)

BORDEAUX, France—France, declaring her navy and her air force "intact," insisted today that her peace terms with Germany and Italy be "honorable."

While Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were debating Premier Henri Philippe Petain's request for peace, Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin told the French people and the world by radio last night that "if we are given the choice between surrender and honor, the French army and the whole French people will know what to do."

As he spoke, the German legions were plunging still deeper into France on virtually all fronts, but the French army still resisted, especially at Orleans, 70 miles south of Paris, and in the region of La Charite Sur Loire, a full 120 miles southeast of the capital.

(The Germans reported they have taken Orleans.)

At both of these places, which are on the Loire river, fighting was "violent," according to last night's communique of the French high command.

"At all points of contact," said the communique, "our troops still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag."

Baudoin said "we are ready to lay down arms if we can get an honorable peace, but we are never ready to accept shameful conditions which mean the end of the spiritual freedom of our people."

Nevertheless French military spokesmen acknowledged that the end was at hand—that the front was disorganized and that the Germans had split the French forces into four ribbons.

(By United Press)

ROME—Italy and Germany will continue military operations against France and her possessions until she accepts whatever axis conditions for cessation of hostilities may be agreed upon by Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini at Munich, official sources said today.

It was stated also that war against Britain will continue to the end without any French surrender altering in any way plans for operations by the axis partners against the British.

BRITISH HURL CHALLENGE AS INVASION NEARS

Churchill Tells Commons Enemy Will Be Drowned In Sea or Blown to Pieces.

France will come to an end" although he did not state in what form that resistance might continue.

However, he told the commons and people of his nation Britain, with over 1,250,000 of her own men under arms, dominions armies on her soil and a navy, was prepared to meet invasion.

The navy, he said, could not prevent raids by 5,000 or 10,000 men on a dark night or a foggy morning, but he predicted with confidence that these invaders might well be "drowned in the sea or blow to pieces while trying to land."

Churchill told commons that seven-eights of the British troops sent to France, or 350,000 out of 400,000, now are back in England.

Behind these stand half a million local defense volunteers, he said.

"We also have dominions armies here," Churchill added

Canadians landed in France have been safely withdrawn.

"In view of the troops now in this country, invasion of this country would require hostile armies on a very large scale," the prime minister went on.

"And we have a navy."

In the final battle for France, now lost, Churchill asserted there were only three British divisions, because of the time it took to replace supplies and equipment lost in the disaster of Flanders.

"We sent every man we could to France as fast as we could re-equip and transport their formations," he said.

Without the concentration of men and materials now in England, Churchill explained, "we cannot face what lies before us."

Churchill told commons that the entire British expeditionary force in France was thrown out of action when the French high command failed to withdraw the northern armies from Belgium at the moment they knew the French front was broken at Sedan and on the Meuse river.

The delay entailed a loss of 15 or 16 French divisions, Churchill said.

Churchill in a radio speech last night said that "what has happened in France makes no difference to Britain's faith and purpose."

"We shall defend our island home," he declared, "and with the British empire around us we shall fight on, unconquerable until the curse of Hitler is lifted from the brows of mankind."

The air ministry said "the RAF heavily bombarded military objectives over a wide area in the Rhineland Ruhr and northwestern Germany last night."

"Early today an enemy destroyer off the Frisian island was bombed and hit amidships," the report added.

Legion Speaker

CARL W. SMITH

McVey Post, American Legion, will celebrate its 21st birthday anniversary Wednesday with a "coming of age" party at the Legion home. Members of the auxiliary will be guests.

McVey Post was organized in June, 1919, soon after the World war veterans had returned from abroad.

Carl W. Smith, Kenton, a member of the state civil service commission, former secretary of the Ohio Board of Paroles and a former newspaper man, will be the speaker.

After the program there will be a buffet supper.

Seeburger's plan called for four men off at one time and reduced the vacation period to about four months.

The chief had asked council for four additional men to replace the firemen while they were on vacations. His request had been turned down by the finance committee which argued that limited city funds prohibited hiring the men, even for a temporary period.

Although officials declined comment, it was learned that Seeburger had agreed to the revised schedule of vacations on the promise that council would appropriate funds for the employment of at least two additional men in the fire department.

firm was out of the city today and it could not be learned when actual construction would be started but highway officials in Columbus predicted that the improvement would get under way before July 1.

The project calls for reconstruction of the roadway from North Diamond street to a point just east of Ausdale avenue with a 22-foot brick center driving lane with six-foot concrete parking strips on either side.

Total cost of the improvement has been estimated at $170,000 with the city and state sharing equally on the contract cost. Included in the $170,000 estimate, are labor costs being paid by the federal government.

City council settled the controversial paving question early last month and authorized construction, appropriating $29,300 to meet the city's share of the cost. A bond issue of $18,700 was approved in anticipation of the collection of assessments to pay the property owners' share.

TALKS TODAY

Leland-Stanford Researcher To Address Farmers.

Karl Brandt, of the food research institute of Leland Stanford university, was the speaker today at the Institute of Rural Affairs being held at Central Methodist church for three days.

The institute started yesterday with about 150 representatives of farm organizations and vocational teachers present from 11 North Central counties.

Brandt today was to speak on "A Permanent Agricultural Policy of the Future," around which will center a number of group discussions.

Tomorrow's speaker will be Raymond E. Crist, professor of geography of the University of Illinois, whose subject will be "The Land and the People."

The district committee in charge of arranging the institute is made up of George B. Ganyard, Richland county extension agent; U. J. Austin, Miss Ethel Cosco, Miss Margaret Bird, D. T. Friday and John Cummings.

to pan-American democratic solidarity in the present economic problem.

Argentina is one of the strongest democracies below the equator, they declared, but economic instability is an ever-present threat to her security.

Failure of Argentina to maintain her economic position through United States' assistance would mean, they said, that as soon as the European war ends this country would be subjected to the domination of German economy because of inability to market her products elsewhere.

Argentina, with an important output of wheat, corn, meat, hides and wool in normal times, has lost 30 per cent of her markets abroad.

STATE BENEFITS TO JOBLESS IN COUNTY DECLINE

BUC Branch Manager Asserts Decrease Shows Improved Employment Conditions.

Reflecting improved economic conditions in the Mansfield district, unemployment compensation benefits to jobless workers in the area during May showed a five per cent decrease, C. W. Handley, branch manager of the state Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

Handley said a total of $33,561 was paid to unemployed workers in Richland, Ashland and Morrow counties last month as compared with $35,230 the month previous.

The amount represented a total of 3,702 benefit payments as against 3,782 such checks distributed in April.

Average weekly benefit for total unemployment was $9.68 as compared with a state average of $10.31, while the average weekly benefit for partial unemployment was reported at $5.57 as against a state average of $4.91.

The May total boosted to $143,734 the amount that has been distributed to jobless workers in the district since Jan. 1, Handley said.

Placements in industry last month also showed an increase, a total of 313 persons having received jobs through the state employment division of the compensation bureau, as compared with 304 for April.

Handley said the active file representing the number of job applicants in the district at the end of June totaled 3,696.

COURT DIRECTS FOR DEFENDANT

Awarded Verdict In Suit For $5,100 Damages After Auto Accident.

A directed verdict for Ralph Baxer of Sandusky, defendant in a $5,100 damage suit, was approved yesterday afternoon by the Richland county petit jury after the jurors heard the testimony for the plaintiff, George Stover, jr., of Ashland.

The verdict was returned on a motion of the defense counsel, Attys. C. H. Henkel and J. H. Gongwer, Mansfield, and Wilbur Benoy, Columbus.

Stover, represented by Atty. J. L. Mason of Ashland, sought damages for injuries received last Nov. 4 in an automobile accident near Plymouth.

On today's jury schedule is a suit in which Clarence Kerr, Mansfield, seeks the right to share in state industrial compensation payments for injuries he suffered in 1938 while employed by the Bissman company, Mansfield.

Kerr, whose petition states he was permanently disabled, filed the action after the Ohio Industrial commission turned down his claims.

The jury has four other cases on its calendar for the week, including three appeals from municipal court decisions.

AAA SENDS $148,513 INTO COUNTY, LARGEST AMOUNT YET

Richland county received a $148,513 share of the $13,085,023 federal AAA allotment to Ohio in 1939, the U. S. department of agriculture reported today.

That amount, largest ever to come into the county under the federal farm program, included payments to farmers, cost of administering the program, and materials furnished to farmers as grants-in-aid.

Payments to farmers for reducing crop acreage and improving their land and price parity payments totaled well over $100,000 in the county last year, but definite figures were not available at the county AAA office.

Total allotments in the nation were $520,360,802. To receive the payments, farmers must comply with the federal requirements for crop acreage reduction, use of land building practices, and the planting of crops that will build the soil but do not add to the grain surplus.

Allotments to other north central Ohio counties included $191,916 to Knox county, $216,793 to Marion county, and $252,761 to Licking county.

100 SIGNED UP FOR 'Y' PROGRAM

Kittenball Leagues Soon to Be Formed, Variety of Activities Started.

More than 100 boys are registered for the Y. M. C. A. summer program which got under way yesterday, Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary, announced today.

Nearly every elementary and junior high school in the city is represented among those registered.

Thirty boys took part in opening kittenball games played at the Empire field on West Fourth street, under supervision of Donald D. Cram, "Y" physical director. "Y" leagues will be formed soon.

Swimming and woodcraft classes were started yesterday afternoon at the "Y" building, and Red Cross swimming classes under the supervision of Farnum Coffin will get under way this afternoon. These classes are open to boys over nine years of age.

Although the summer program has been started, boys can still register, Chapman said. A special low membership rate of $1 for boys is now in effect, he added.

Tax Funds Swell City Treasury, It Has Balance Now

The city's general fund had a substantial balance today for the first time in several weeks.

Receipt of $53,753 from the county, representing the first half year property tax settlement, wiped out a deficit of $5,500 and left a balance of approximately $31,000, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said.

The tax money represented the balance of the city's share of the February collection, an advance draft of $51,800 having been drawn early in May to meet expenditures in the operating fund.

Of the total received today, Kelley said $36,000 went to the general fund while the balance was distributed to the firemen's pension fund, the police relief fund and for general bond retirement.

A total of $2,500 was earmarked for payment on $25,000 in tax delinquency bonds authorized last fall to finance the city's relief expenditures.

Four From City Faculties Study At 2 Universities

Two Mansfield school principals, an assistant principal and a teacher, this week will begin summer work at Ohio State university and the University of Wisconsin.

Jesse Beer and Herman D. Bishop, principal and assistant principal respectively at Senior high school, and H. J. Dotson, principal at John Simpson Junior high school, will begin a six-weeks' summer school course at Ohio State tomorrow.

Dotson will continue work on his master's degree in education, while Beer and Bishop will be doing special work. They will attend classes twice a week.

Continuing his work toward a master's degree, John C. Stout, salesmanship teacher at Senior high school, is at University of Wisconsin for eight weeks.

THIRD TIME'S A CHARM, SO CITY LETS CONTRACT

Buys 500 Water Meters on Bid Of Pittsburgh Firm, $668 Under Best Previous One.

Ending a four-month delay during which bids were called for three different times, the city board of control today awarded to the Pittsburgh Equitable Meter company, Pittsburgh, Pa., the contract for delivery of 500 water meters on a low bid of $4,250.

The Pittsburgh firm's bid, one of seven received on the equipment, was $175 below the closest competitor, the Worthington-Gamin company, Harrison, N. J., which bid $4,425.

The Pittsburgh company's was $668 under its own two previous bids, while the Worthington proposal was $607 less than it had previously proposed.

Other proposals, all lower than those previously submitted were the Phoenix Meter corporation, Staten Island, N. Y., $4,450; Buffalo Meter company, Buffalo, N. Y., $4,525; Badger Meter company, Milwaukee, Wis., $4,660; Neptune Meter company, New York City, and the Hersey Manufacturing company, Boston, Mass., $4,985.

Similar bids by the same firms were rejected on two previous occasions by Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton who declared that the unit prices were higher than prices paid for identical meters purchased by other cities from the same companies.

He said the latest proposals were more "in line" with prices paid for meters in other cities and unit prices were noticebaly lower than previous quotations.

NO BARRIERS TO CANADIAN ENTRY

Travelling Americans Need No Passports In Dominion, Auto Club Advised.

Contrary to rumors that the war has brought special restrictions on American citizens entering Canada for travel, officials of the Richland County Automobile club had been advised today that there has been no change in regulations for Americans going to Canada.

According to Jack R. Berger, assistant auto club secretary, auto clubs throughout the United States have been informed by the Canadian legation in Washington, D. C., that there are no unusual restrictions being placed on American citizens entering that country for travel.

Rifles and guns are not permitted, the legation advised, but it is not necessary for U. S. citizens entering Canada to have passports, Berger said.

However, because of the war, the United States is closely supervising entry of aliens into this country. After July 1, all aliens, in addition to meeting other requirements, will be required to have passports and visas from American consular officers abroad.

EXAMS LISTED

Civil Service Jobs Available, Secretary Reports.

Scheduling of open competitive examinations for nine government positions was announced today by the United States Civil Service commission.

Positions for which examinations will be held are, junior engineer, with aeronautical, naval architecture and marine engineering as optional branches; advanced apprentice engraver, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D. C.; and assistant scientific aid, with chemistry, physics, cotton-textile technology and yarn and fabric testing, as optional branches.

Also open are positions as construction cost auditor, principal and junior in U. S. Maritime Commission; furniture designer, Federal Prison Industries, Department of Justice; and director of libraries, and assistant director of libraries, Department of Agriculture.

Information concerning the examinations is available from George H. Hoover, local secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service examiners, Mansfield post office.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSERVANCY TAXES COMBINED ON NEW BILLS

The tax statements which have been mailed to Mansfield and Madison township property owners are for the combined real estate and conservancy levies for the last half of the year, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today.

Total amount due for the half-year period is shown in the upper righthand corner of the statement. That figure includes all current and delinquent taxes, the treasurer said.

He said there had been some confusion as to the payment of the Mansfield conservancy tax, collected in the city and in parts of Madison township.

The conservancy and property taxes are collected together following the recent merger of the conservancy office with the treasurer's department.

If some property owners do not receive statements it will be because their proper addresses are not on file, the treasurer explained. Statements will be mailed to persons who telephone or write the county treasurer's office at the courthouse, he added.

Taxes have already started to pour in although the books do not officially open until July 1, Kolb said. Payments can be made without penalty until Aug. 20.

CREDITS COUNTY POPULATION HIKE TO CITY PLANTS

Census Official Says Mansfield Industry Brought Most Of 11 Per Cent Increases.

Mansfield's industrial growth during the past 10 years was credited with causing the 11 per cent increase in population in Richland county, Charles Q. Bloomquist, area census supervisor, said in Columbus today.

Preliminary figures on the 16th decennial census released last week by Don Harper, district census director at Mt. Vernon, revealed that Richland county showed the greatest gain of any of the six counties in the 17th congressional district. It had a total population of 73,643, as against a population of 65,992 in 1930.

Bloomquist, dispatches from Columbus said, reported that major portion of the population increase in the county outside the city in the past decade was absorbed in Madison and Springfield townships.

Madison township's population, which includes Mansfield's suburbs of South Boulevards, East Mansfield, Lincoln Heights, Roseland and Garden Acres, and goes towards making up Greater Mansfield, was listed at 9,794, an increase of 1,478 persons over the 1930 total of 8,316.

The population of Greater Mansfield was 47,141 while the count in the city proper was 37,024, a 12 per cent increase over the 1930 census count of 33,525.

Time for Action, Not Politics

WHATEVER may be the final outcome of the struggle which Great Britain seems destined to carry on alone against Nazi Germany, now being aided by Fascist Italy, the time has come for the people of the United States to adopt a more realistic attitude toward their own dangerous situation and to revise their optimistic notions that " it can't happen here."

In the face of the storm that has been gathering over Europe ever since the armistice and the Versailles treaty, and even through the Munich "appeasement", Great Britain and France maintained an attitude of calm confidence that nothing serious could happen to them and appeared to have no realization of the rapid build-up of the Hitler war machine.

The United States has shown a similar lethargic disregard of impending danger, to the extent of ignoring its own defensive needs and placing faith in the assumed invulnerability of Great Britain's navy, while wasting billions of dollars on socialistic experiments of New Deal idealists and self-seeking politicians.

Americans have viewed with horror the orgy of Nazi terrorism that has been visited upon the small independent nations of Europe, but to the final frantic appeal of France for "clouds of airplanes", the reply of President Roosevelt was, "we are doing all we can."

Stalin, after his raid on Finland, has now moved Russian troops into Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia, and, if France falls, dictatorship will have taken supreme rule in Europe from the North to the Black sea and from the Mediterranean to the Arctic ocean.

Nazi influences have been at work in South America and in Mexico and the Western Hemisphere is endangered by the same forces of evil with which Great Britain is now battling alone in defense of human liberties and the right to live as free men.

Despite the urge to partisian politics, which is emphasized by approaching party conventions and the November election, there can be no minimizing of the importance of acting immediately to correct conditions which are slowing the defense program and which seriously retarded more effective aid to the Allies at a time when it might have been beneficial.

More Jockeying With Ballots

WHILE several other things are scheduled for consideration, and probable action, during the special session of the Ohio legislature which convened yesterday, separating the state and national tickets for the November election seems to be the main purpose of the call.

It is unfortunate that the political implications of this move are as apparent as they were a number of years ago, when national and state ballots were thrown together for the purpose of strengthening the state ticket. Now it is the same situation in reverse—apparently based on acceptance of the idea that President Roosevelt will be the Democratic nominee for third term and that state candidates might be "carried in on his coat-tails," as was the experience in 1936.

The theory in connection with all this, of course, is that great numbers of voters prefer to vote a "straight ticket" instead of taking the chance of making a mistake in marking their ballot.

If common sense, instead of political expediency, should ever become the determining factor in election procedure, the likelihood is that national and state ballots would be separated AND LEFT THAT WAY.

Spoils Safe-Driving Record

REQUIREMENT for constant vigilance while driving a motor vehicle has seldom been more clearly demonstrated than in the case of a veteran bus driver who was fined in municipal court yesterday for crossing an orange stripe on Route 42, northeast of Mansfield.

The orange stripes, as all motorists should know, mark dangerous spots in the road, either curves or slopes, at which other cars are not to be passed.

This bus driver, who had almost a million miles of safe driving to his credit, would shortly have been entitled to a substantial bonus for his carefulness—had he been content to remain behind other cars until a safe passing place was reached.

Fortunately no accident resulted in this instance—but it is such violations of traffic regulations that DO cause crashes, and sometimes fatalities. Observe the orange stripes on the highways—they are intended for your protection.

Allies' American Property

AN INTERESTING Pan-American problem arises, as a result of a Gallup poll. Dr. Gallup finds that 81 per cent of our people favor buying the British and Dutch possessions "in the area of the Panama Canal" if more money is needed to conduct the war.

The lands involved are described as including the Bermudas and Bahamas, British Jamaica south of Cuba, the groups of Windward and Leeward Islands in the Caribbean Sea, the Dutch Islands of Curacao and Aruba close to the canal, British Honduras in Central America north of the canal, and British, French and Dutch Guiana, with their broad front on the northeastern coast of South America, between Venezuela and Brazil. All have strategic value: the rich Guianas probably have more intrinsic value than all the rest put together.

It is an interesting idea to consider, but it seems premature to discuss it just now.

Photographed Treasures

THE University of Texas is making available to students certain rare documents never before obtainable on the campus. It does this by means of a recently developed process for photographing books and rare papers. Experts from the staff visit libraries and museums where such treasures are kept and take pictures of them, using microfilm.

This work is growing in volume. It means not only bringing the documents in question within reading range of many more people than ever before, but also greater protection against loss or injury. They will not have to travel around on loan, but can be kept in their cases while the copies are widely circulated.

It is now being revealed why Germany had no leisure-time problem to cope with during the past ten years.

It may be a bad thing to swap horses in the middle of the stream—but why wasn't there a bridge?

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — In the days of glorifying the major and minor prophets of modern warfare, let me bow low to Rep. Carl Hinshaw, of Pasadena, Calif., for digging up Maj. J. D. Fullerton, of the British Royal Engineers.

On file at the war department is a complete record of a speech Major Fullerton made at the International Congress of Engineers in August, 1893. That, mind you, was ten years before the Wright boys took their first flying machine off the sands of Kitty Hawk. Only the ritziest of the ritzy had electric lights. Gasoline buggies were practically unknown and the greatest pedestrian menace was the bicycle.

Listen! Major Fullerton speaking:

"To sum up: First, it seems quite probable that in the near future, aerial warfare will have to be counted upon.

"Second, this will, practically speaking, revolutionize the art of war.

"Third, owing to the high rate of speed which airships will attain, it will be necessary for all nations to maintain themselves ready for war at very short notice.

"Fourth, the nations most affected by the introduction of aerial warfare will be those who depend for their defense upon navies.

"Fifth, as the aerial ships will be, comparatively speaking, inexpensive, the small nations will be able to equip themselves with them.

"Sixth, owing to the possibility of war at very short notice, a larger proportion of the nation will have to be kept under arms.

"Seventh, warfare by sea and land will only be possible when a nation has command of the air."

If that's not hitting the fuselage on the nose, I never heard of it. Like Mr. Hinshaw, it's hard to keep from wondering—if that sort of conviction has been floating around in military circles for 47 years—where the army strategists of our and other nations have been. And how come it was left to A. Hitler, Goering & Co. to prove the British major's points?

Offers Sub-Capital.

CARL BROWN, editor of The Atchison Globe, must be first with the news out Atchison way because he was first to offer his city as a rabbit hole for the national capitol.

Observing that dispatches indicate Washington is pretty jittery, Mr. Brown wrote Congressman W. P. Lambertson:

"My only conclusion is that Washington people see visions of invasion.

"The good old town of Atchison, Kans., wishing to alleviate the sufferings of Washington people, invites and urges that a subsidiary national capitol be created in Atchison, which is in the heart of America.

"Atchison has four railroads, is on the Missouri river, which now is ready for steamboat and barge traffic, and has beautiful sites for government buildings.

"Atchison submits this invitation and urges it in all seriousness. Even when the world is at peace, there should be a subsidiary national capital in the heart of America."

If the applause that swept the house when Mr. Brown's letter was read is a criterion, the representatives think that's a swell idea. Who's next?

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, June 18, 1935.

Miss Elizabeth Wollmann, of the John Simpson Junior high school faculty, was granted a leave of absence for a year to take a teaching post in England.

W. M. Dann, assistant manager of the Westinghouse plant at Sharon, Pa., was the guest speaker at the Kiwanis club meeting.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.—Psalm 55:2.

ANOTHER SIREN SONG

Willkie Looms as Possibility

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — It is little short of flabbergasting how much talk has grown up in just the last few weeks about Wendell L. Willkie, the hard-hitting big electric mogul, for the Republican presidential nomination. One of the last to take it seriously has been Willkie himself, but he certainly is a candidate now. And how!

Nobody goes trotting out to Kansas for a powwow with Alf. M. Landon, for instance, just for the pleasure of talking with that personable gentleman, delightful as he may be as a conversationalist.

But the funny part of it all is that it IS possible for Willkie to win the big prize. Not probable—yet—but distinctly possible. It could happen something like this. The convention would start balloting, after a number of nominating and second speeches, with their timeworn and threadbare—though never in ear-jarring volume—demonstrations intended to show all and sundry that this particular candidate is the one who arouses enthusiasm.

Beyond a doubt the two leaders on that first ballot will be Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft, in that order. Trailing will be Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania, Frank E. Gannett and the lesser candidates. Willkie will have a sprinkling, but only that.

* * *

THEN will come the crucial testing, characteristic of all political conventions which are not an obvious pushover for some favorite. In that testing, Dewey will get the first run, and Taft the second. It is the considered opinion of most politicians that Dewey will not be able to win a majority in this first testing. It is a little doubtful about Taft. He MAY be nominated within the first few ballots, but he PROBABLY will not be.

After Dewey and Taft have had their first runs, and both proved unsuccessful, Senator Vandenberg, will be given a short whirl. Best opinion is he will get nowhere, despite the fact that he will have more friends in the convention than any one else, including whoever is nominated.

Up to a few days ago, it was assumed that the next man to be given a chance would be Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio. In fact, Bricker was the man, up to a few days ago, that many of the elder statesmen of the party actually thought was going to be the nominee. Now it would surprise no one if Willkie were then given a "run."

If that statement had been made a month ago it would have gotten a loud laugh from every political reporter in Washington, including the writer. Now it is made in all seriousness, and no one laughs. It is POSSIBLE. Not PROBABLE, but it can happen.

* * *

THE change is due almost entirely to the war situation. The country has been shocked in at least three ways: first, in that it sees that President Roosevelt believes this country MIGHT get into war; second, that the condition of our army and navy is woefully inadequate, despite the billions which have been spent on it during the seven years Roosevelt has been in the White House; and finally, in the apparent inability of the Allies to hold Germany more successfully.

One of the first effects of these shocks was to weaken Dewey. This may not be logical, or sound, or fair, but it is a fact nevertheless. Another has been to strengthen enormously F. D. R., on the old principle of not swapping horses in midstream. But another effect has been to call for a candidate who has demonstrated that he knows how to do things, has administrative ability, and has proved that he can spend money to advantage. And this cap fits Willkie.

Solitary Souls—Are They Special Treats or Simply Fade-Outs?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE people who "aren't good mixers," who'd rather "go off with a good book" than join the pleasantest party—just how do they rate as humans? Do their anti-social traits prove that they're A Special Treat . . . finer than our common clay? Or do they merely prove that THEY HAVEN'T WHAT IT TAKES TO BE REGULAR GUYS?

Mrs. Thomas M. T. ——— would like our opinion immediately, by return mail if possible. For, it seems, the T's have one of these Solitary Souls in their midst—and there's the devil to pay! The S. S., in this case, is 16-year-old Junior—pride 'n' joy of his doting mother's heart. Junior "doesn't like to get out and play with the other kids." Hasn't even a boy chum. Insists on mooning around his room, reading, day-dreaming, drawing copies of Mr. Petty's Dimpled Darlings. All of which has Pop raving.

"What kinduva man is he going to make?" snorts he, with a mean look at Mom. "Or were you calc-lating on keeping him a sissy? Letting him lolligag around the house, indulging in a lot of unhealthy notions, instead of getting out like a regular fellow and learning what life and people are all about . . . what kinduva way is that to raise a boy?"

Whereupon Mother scorches back: "You know perfectly well, Tom, that the child's just sensitive; that's why he likes to be by himself. And what's wrong with that? I certainly prefer a talented boy who loves the finer things of life, to one of these young hoodlums you're always admiring."

"Talented, my eye!" riposes Dad. "That kid's plain lazy, cowardly and conceited. He doesn't give a darn for the finer things of life; he's simply hiding out on life because he hasn't the guts to take it—and you're helping him. And wrecking him for keeps. Well, I'm going to put my foot down. No boy of mine is going to become public nuisance—not if I know it!"

So the battle's on, with Mom asking me if I can't help Dad see sense. Can't I make him understand that a young idealist like Junior is different from other boys and should be encouraged to develop along his own lines? It's so stupid to regiment children, force them to think alike, etc., etc.

A great Englishman, Alexander Pope, once said, "The proper study of mankind is man." And every modern educator or psychologist will tell you that the proper time to start that study is when a youngster is young enough to adjust himself.

Fortunately, normal human beings are social creatures and the average boy or girl likes to get out into the thick of things. Those who don't are afflicted with just one thing—and it ISN'T talent. They're afflicted with FEAR, and they'll prove a pest to themselves and everyone else unless that Fear is erased.

Which goes as well for every age and condition of mankind. Nine-tenths of our miseries—industrial and domestic—arise from the fact that we didn't learn how to adjust ourselves to fate and folks while the adjusting was good. We were afraid — afraid of criticism, competition and challenge. So we ran away, "with a good book," or some other pretext. And we'll keep on running away, whenever things grow difficult, for the rest of our lives.

Have you a Solitary Soul in your family? Then, if you love him, cure him—EVEN IF YOU HAVE TO USE A BASEBALL BAT!

P. S.: As for this "regimentation" idea, it's my private hunch that what this country needs most is a bumper crop of Young Americans who've been thoroughly regimented in the fundamental facts of courtesy and civilized relationships. I know there's a lot of hi-do-ho talk to the contrary, but, in my experience, the Prize Pest is one of these young Free Thinkers who has always been allowed to "express himself individually" and has never had a diamond - hitch cinched around him.

Horn Blowing.

It has become a common practice of some motorists to blow their horns each time they pass a moving line of cars in another lane, when they encounter a stop sign or a red light and when the light in the conflicting direction changes to amber.

Experienced drivers recognize that actual need for their horns is confined to rare cases of imminent possible accident. They realize that most horn blowing results from impatience or annoyance and not only is unnecessary but is largely ineffectual.

This practice, while it is not dangerous in itself, certainly can be classed as contributory to the hazards of traffic since it engenders in other motorists a spirit of resentment and anger which is not conducive to safe driving, particularly during rush periods when horn blowing is most prevalent. —Washington Star.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It is now recognized in U. S. military and diplomatic circles that almost nothing except a miracle can save the Allies, and in days of armored tanks and skies blackened with airplanes, miracles don't happen easily.

In fact, there seems to be only one miracle within the realm of possibility, and that is the entry into the war of both the United States and Russia. This would mean that these two countries of extremely opposite political views would become allies of the Allies.

The effect of Russia's entry into the war would be of more immediate value than the United States'. Automatically it would bring Turkey into the war, a bad blow for Italy; also it would bring in Rumania and Jugoslavia on the side of the Allies.

Whether Russia will do this remains to be seen. But there is no question that Stalin is on the spot. The sending of half a million Red troops to the Baltic states for protection against Germany clearly indicates his worry. Obviously when Hitler gets through cleaning up Western Europe, the fertile wheat fields and rich coal mines of the Ukraine are going to look most enticing.

One thing to remember about Stalin is that he is intensely personal. With him, personal supremacy comes first. Hundreds of leaders who disagreed with him have vanished from sight.

Ordinarily, the annihilation of capitalist France and Britain would be manna to communism. But their annihilation also may mean the annihilation of the Stalin regime—which is the one and only reason why you now see Russia moving somewhat toward the Allies.

U. S. Needs Friends.

THE position of the United States today is very simple. For years it has had a powerful friend—the British Empire. Senate isolationists would have thrown up their hands in horror at the mere mention of the fact, but for all practical purposes Great Britain for years has been our ally.

But with British weakening today, the United States has to woo a new ally. Otherwise it cannot protect itself on both the Atlantic and Pacific. The only available allies today are Japan and Russia, neither very welcome, but in this day of blitzkrieged national prestige, beggars cannot be choosers.

That is why you will find some even of the slow-moving young men around the state department today giving thought to the idea of our warming up to Russia.

Knudsen on Roosevelt.

WILLIAM KNUDSEN, production co-ordinator of the National Defense Committee, has had plenty of differences, political and economic, with Franklin Roosevelt. And some of them were pretty vigorous. But the General Motors boss is working for the president now, and the past is the past.

Knudsen made this clear the other day when he and a business friend encountered Representative Leon Sacks of Philadelphia. The friend introduced Sacks to Knudsen as "one of those 100 per cent Roosevelt guys."

To this Knudsen quietly replied: "Aren't we all, these grave days? The president is the head of our country and he deserves our full co-operation. Mr. Sacks, as one 100 per cent Roosevelt man to another, I'm glad to meet you."

Hoover's "Form Sheet."

Best starting chance to win—Senator Bob Taft.

Best long shot—Hoover.

The ex-president, who long has nursed an ambition to come back, believes that the war crisis has greatly improved his chances. He is the only Republican candidate who has had experience in the executive branch of the government, and this, plus his World war European background, Hoover thinks, make him particularly fitted to run for the presidency at this time.

Also, Hoover is convinced that time has dissipated much of the popular resentment against his ill-starred administration. His mail has increased greatly in recent weeks and many one-time supporters are active for him again.

Taft is Hoover's first choice after himself because their economic views are similar. Taft also was a member of Hoover's food administration. Nevertheless Hoover doesn't consider him a strong standard bearer under present conditions.

Friends predict that if he finds he has no chance, and if Taft peters out, then Willkie is next on his list. The utility magnate has the zip and personality Hoover thinks are needed to oppose Roosevelt—who he is certain will run.

Note—It is significant that while Willkie has panned some Old Guard GOP leaders, such as Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew, he has carefully avoided saying anything about Hoover. One of Willkie's biggest obstacles is the hostility of Republican congressional leaders who view his utility and J. P. Morgan background as political poison for state and local tickets.

Spirit of Washington.

WHILE Washington warmly debates the question, "Will we or won't we?", the old war-time song, "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," is coming back, and an emotional spirit is sweeping the town like the spirit of 1917.

You won't find this in the daily dispatches from the Capital, but it is just as important as an official declaration of policy from the White House or the state department. It is made up of fragments, each expressing an impetuous spirit that is ready for anything.

In a French restaurant on Connecticut avenue, a patron asks the orchestra to play, "Mademoiselle from Armentieres", and the crowd swings into the song with, "Hinky, dinky, parlez-vous."

Newsmen covering agriculture find that nobody wants stories on corn and cotton. In the press room they occupy themselves with argument over whether the U. S. should enter the war.

Diplomatic cars pull up at the state department in an unending stream. Hull and Welles receive ambassadors at all hours.

The cool marble building of the Federal Reserve comes to life with the intrusion of the National Defense Council into its offices. Newsmen clutter there as they did at NRA offices in 1934.

The rigid rules of the senate gallery are violated when the crowd breaks into tumultuous applause for Josh Lee of Oklahoma, at the end of an emotional speech calling for assistance to the Allies.

The spirit of Washington today would make isolationist Senator Henry Cabot Lodge turn over in his grave.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This is the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo, which took place in 1815. It was here that Wellington, with the timely aid of Blucher, defeated Napoleon and put an end to his dreams. The defeated Emperor was then exiled to St. Helena.

National Safety Placed First

SKILLED labor shortages in industries engaged in production for defense purposes will in some cases undoubtedly necessitate increases in the length of the working day. President Roosevelt has already indicated that congress may be asked to modify the Walsh-Healey act, setting an 8-hour day for work on government contracts. The introduction of a longer working week in navy yards and army ordnance depots is also under discussion, according to the Washington Post.

Obstructive tactics on the part of leaders of organized labor to prevent any relaxation of restrictive labor laws or trade union rules would seriously jeopardize the execution of the national defense program. The experience of other countries, notably France, shows how necessary it is to put considerations of national safety above the benefits of a 40-hour week.

France lost precious time in a vain endeavor to speed defense preparations without lengthening the working day. Well before the outbreak of the war, however, the government had been compelled to introduce longer working hours into industries ministering to the national defense.

After the declaration of war the 60-hour week became general and now there are in practice no limitations. But the government does not permit either employers or employes to alter the terms of the collective bargaining contracts in force when the war started. It extends its protection to both groups, thereby showing that bargaining rights surrender for the duration of the emergency are still recognized.

So long as the right to organize for purposes of collective bargaining remains unimpaired, labor in the United States need not fear that concessions made in the national interest will entail a weakening of its bargaining position.

Diplomats of American Republics Study Trade Cartel

ACT SEEN AS OFFENSIVE TO CHECK AXIS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Diplomats representing the 20 other American republics entered into informal discussions with the state department today over President Roosevelt's move to establish a Western Hemisphere trade cartel for future dealings with the dictatorships.

The four cabinet officers charged with drafting specific recommendations for a central trading agency to handle export surpluses of all the Americas will meet again tomorrow. They expect to have their report in the president's hands by Thursday for approval and formal submission to the governments of the Pan American union.

Latin American envoys were calling on Secretary of State Hull and his assistants to get a preliminary picture of the proposed trade combine, which is being projected to cushion the economic impact of possible German victory in the European war.

Administration officials were moving cautiously in launching an economic offensive of such proportions, well aware of the many obstacles to be overcome both at home and in the sister republics.

Use of the word "cartel" in describing the suggested trade alliance was regarded as significant. One of its dictionary definitions is an agreement among independent nations to control prices. Another definition is "a written challenge or defiance, as to single combat."

Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, together with their economic advisers, discussed the plan for two hours yesterday. Today, the trade experts were reducing it to a specifically written framework.

One of the major hurdles will be the question of financing, which presumably will fall to the lot of the United States, provided the plan is adopted. In setting up a common clearing house to handle all export surpluses of the Western Hemisphere it was anticipated that the various manufacturers and growers would expect an immediate cash drawing account against their goods pending ultimate sale. Officials declined to estimate for the moment how large a revolving fund would be required.

If the cartel reaches fruition, it was expected that not only Canada but the other British dominions would be invited to join.

The White House statement revealing the president's latest challenge to the Rome-Berlin axis said that the trade problem was being studied "as it affects the American republics as well as such other countries as may be confronting a similar situation."

MURDER CHARGE

Lorain Steel Worker Held In Death of High School Girl.

LORAIN — (INS) — A charge of second degree murder was lodged today against Steve Popovitch, 29-year-old South Lorain steel worker, by the police prosecutor's office in connection with the death of pretty Velma Ericson, 17-year-old high school graduate.

Popovich confessed, according to Police Prosecutor Austin O'Toole that the girl jumped from his moving automobile early Wednesday, shortly before she died of a fractured skull.

According to Detective Lieutenant John Meister, the man picked up Miss Ericson and a friend, Ruth Ford, 18, outside a restaurant about midnight last Tuesday. He took Miss Ford home and then drove around with Miss Ericson. When he attempted to put his arm around her, Meister said, she jumped from the automobile.

DEMS SET TO RE-ORGANIZE

Executive Committee to Meet Next Week; 3 From City to Attend G. O. P. Convention.

While announcements setting the date for the reorganization meeting of the Richland county Democratic executive committee were being sent out to committeemen today, three Mansfielders were planning to attend the national Republican convention in Philadelphia next week.

G. A. Baer, veteran political leader and recently elected chairman of the Democratic central committee, announced that the new executive committee will meet at 8 p. m. next Tuesday in the common pleas court room in the courthouse.

Baer said that the committee is now completed with the exception of one representative from Shelby. Members of the executive committee are named by the members of the central committee.

It was generally agreed among leaders today that if John C. O'Donnell, present executive chairman, will accept a second term there will be little or no opposition. John Correll is secretary.

Baer said the executive committee would decide whether or not to set up a campaign committee, and probably would map plans for the fall campaign.

Three Mansfield men will attend the national Republican convention next week in Philadelphia, according to Ralph M. Hardy, chairman of the Republican executive committee. They are C. F. Routzahn, a veteran who hasn't missed a national convention in years, R. B. Gardner, who will attend in the interests of the American Legion and as state commander of Ohio Legionnaires; and Attorney John C. Catlett, Republican candidate for county representative.

Hardy said that one or two others might go to Philadelphia during the week but that the demand for tickets made them difficult to obtain.

HILLSBORO—(AP)—A roadside shooting ended today in death for Mrs. Margaret L. Fender, 48, and the wounding of Richard L. Fender, 52, her divorced husband, and Waldo Harshbargar, 21.

Deputy Sheriff Howard Miller said Fender killed his former wife, shot Harshbarger, in the arm, then turned a .22 calibre gun on himself, inflicting a head wound. He is not expected to live.

The shooting occurred, Miller said, when Fender drove alongside a car in which Harshbarger, a friend of the family, was returning Mrs. Fender to her home in Mowrytown, 15 miles southwest. The Fenders were divorced about a year ago.

Sea Monster to Be Exhibited on Railroad Train

Colossus, a 68-ton sea monster will be featured in the Marine Hippodrome to show in Mansfield for two days, beginning Friday.

The exhibition, built on a specially constructed railroad train, will be located on a side track near the Erie freight depot on North Diamond street. The show will be open Friday and Saturday from noon until 11 p. m.

The sea monster, over 55 feet long, is one of the feature attractions with the show, and has been exhibited throughout the United States and Canada. Another feature will be Prof. John Lynch and his troupe of performing fleas, known as "The London Flea Circus."

Serpentina, known as the living mermaid will also be in the exhibit, as will be a family of live penguins from the Byrd South Pole expedition. Entertainment both evenings will be furnished by Tim Mix and his troupe of singing cowgirls and comboys.

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

POLICE HOLD MAN ON CHARGE HE BEAT UP HOLLYWOOD ACTOR

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Actor Richard Arlen's complaint that William Tate, 30, attacked and beat him at the Wilshire Country club golf course led police to detain Tate today on suspicion of extortion.

Police Officer T. F. Mellott, said Arlen told him that ten weeks ago Tate met him as he stepped from an airplane at Metropolitan airport and used a pistol to force him into an automobile.

"He kept me prisoner for more than an hour, accusing me of alienating his wife's affections and demanding $1,000 so he could get out of town," Mellott quoted the actor.

"I don't even know his wife. To avoid trouble, I put former Detective Lieut Frank James to work on the case instead of reporting the incident to police."

Yesterday as the actor was preparing to play in the qualifying rounds of the Southern California amateur golf tournament, Arlen said he was surprised and stunned by an unexpected blow which felled him.

Olin Dutra, golf professional, and Arlen's caddy seized Tate. James made a "citizen's arrest." Arlen said he was able to resume play, despite a bruised jaw, lacerated forehead and a back sprain.

"Arlen broke up my home," Tate protested to Mellott, declaring his wife had met the actor at a party given by Arlen and Walter Hagen, golf pro, at a Long Beach hotel last winter.

Tate's wife Evelyn, has a divorce suit pending in which she charges cruelty.

Nine Register as G.A.R. Convention Opens in Columbus

Only nine members of the Ohio Grand Army of the Republic were registered at the 74th annual encampment in Columbus, but they staunchly predicted that they would be meeting for another 10 years.

Thomas Ridenour, Crestline, the 94-year-old senior vice commander, scouted the idea that this would be the last G. A. R. convention.

"We've been hearing about this last-convention business for the past 10 years," he said today in Columbus, "but we'll be going strong for another 10 years."

The youngest veterans of the Civil war are now all past 90 years. Mansfield has only one survivor of the war, W. B. Hammett, and he is confined to General hospital.

GET $450,000

Y. W. SECRETARY QUITS, 2ND TO LEAVE STAFF

Miss West Resigns, Effective July 15, Leaving Second Vacancy In Personnel.

The second resignation of a Y. W. C. A. staff member was announced last night to the executive committee at a dinner meeting at Westbrook Country club.

Miss Margaret West, general secretary, for the past six years, tendered her resignation, to be effective July 15 when the summer program will have been completed. Several weeks ago Miss Violet Richardson, program secretary, also resigned and left June 1.

Miss West, who came to the Mansfield Y. W. in September, 1934, told the board that she was "leaving with regret, but had to have a complete rest." She will go to her family home at Tiffin. Miss Richardson left to be married.

A number of applications have been received for the vacant positions on the staff, but it was probable, Miss West said, that no decisions would be made until later in the summer. The full program of the Y. W. will not be resumed until early in September.

The services, such as employment bureau and rooms registry, will be continued throughout the summer, with Miss Mary Strater, office secretary, and Miss Elizabeth McBride, house secretary, in charge.

The business girls' club will continue to meet and the Monday night open house plan for senior high school students will be continued so long as there is demand for it, Miss West said. After she leaves there will be volunteer chaperones in charge every Monday night.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste matter out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

TWO AFFAIRS GIVEN FOR MISS RUTH HIGH

Supper Party Last Night, Dinner In Canton Fete Bride-Elect of C. K. Dye; Final Events Set for This Week.

THE NUPTIAL PARADE continues to spot the Mansfield social calendar with bright events, and many showers create a great deal of "ohing" and "ahing" in feminine circles as the city's brides-to-be are feted at smart and unusual parties. Last night Mrs. Harvey Sawhill, 374 Ruth avenue, and Mrs. M. H. Guiher entertained for Miss Ruth High with a supper party.

A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations of the buffet tables, the four small tables at which the guests were seated and in the favors. Bridge and hearts were played and prizes, which were given to the honoree, were awarded to Miss Marjorie High, Miss Florence Case and Miss Virginia Dye.

The hostesses presented her with a gift of crystal, and the children of the hostesses also presented Miss High with a gift of tea towels.

Saturday night Mrs. Wade Arbaugh and Miss Nellie Dilmore entertained at the former's home in Canton with a dinner party honoring Miss High. There were 12 guests present. Following the dinner, bridge was played with prizes going to Miss Marjorie High, Mrs. C. D. Stone and Mrs. R. M. Young. Spring flowers and a miniature bridal party decorated the table. Corsages were given as favors to each guest.

The last two parties for Miss High, who will become the bride of C. K. Dye on June 22, will be given tonight and Thursday night. Mrs. Earl Bates and Mrs. Harry Eyerly are entertaining this evening, while the final affair will be given by the Misses Grace Ladd, Mary Elizabeth Gruber and Emma Witchey when they entertain with a dessert-bridge party at the Women's Club.

Initiate Seven Into Stars at Final Session

Seven new members were initiated into Ruth chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, yesterday evening during that organization's final meeting of the season. Miss Pearl Wierman, worthy matron, was in charge of the session at the Masonic temple.

Chapter activities will be resumed on Sept. 16, with a covered-dish dinner at the temple. Further arrangements were discussed last evening for the initiation and institution of the Rainbow Girls assembly. This will be an event of Saturday, with initiation in the afternoon and the institution in the evening. Both these events will be conducted at John Simpson Junior high school, and a covered-dish dinner will be held at the temple at 6 o'clock. Members of the advisory board are in charge of arrangements.

Service Read at Relative's Home For Young Couple

Miss Ruth Alice Carson became the bride of George Columbus Sunday in a pretty ceremony at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kerr, 29 Glenwood boulevard. Rev. L. C. Watters, pastor of the Free Methodist church, performed the service before an improvised altar under an arch in front of the mantel, which was banked with roses, peonies and palms. A trellis covered with garden flowers formed a background in the archway, while tall tapers lighted the mantel.

The bride, daughter of V. L. Carson, 53 Buckingham street, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta fashioned with a fitted waistline, full skirt and short train. A quilted bolero jacket and tiny sprays of forget-me-nots. Her bouquet was of Killarny roses.

Miss Velma Enders of Republic was the bride's only attendant. She was attired in a dress of peach net which had a fitted bodice and square neckline, decorated with small blue bows. Forget-me-nots also were used to trim her gown. She carried a bouquet of premier roses.

Mr. Columbus, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Fuskos, 454 Springmill street, chose his brother, John Columbus, to be his best man, while another brother, Andrew Columbus, was the usher. Mrs. Kerr wore a dusky pink chiffon dress with corsage of tea roses for her sister's wedding, while Mrs. Fuskos was attired in a printed frock with a similar corsage.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. A four-tiered wedding cake centered the refreshment table. The couple then left for a short motor trip, and the bride wore a blue and white sheer dress with white accessories for traveling.

Upon their return to this city, Mr. and Mrs. Columbus will make their home at 104 Orchard street. Mrs. Columbus attended Mansfield Senior high school, while Mr. Columbus is a graduate of Ontario high school. He is employed at the Humphryes Manufacturing company.

Mansfielder Weds Ashland Girl in Morning Service

At 9 a. m. Saturday morning Miss Mary LaPlant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl LaPlant, Ashland, and Robert Darrell McDaniel, son of H. D. McDaniel, 406 Springmill street, were united in marriage. The ceremony was read by Rev. G. L. Kettering at New London.

Miss LaPlant was attired in a blue taffeta frock with white accessories and wore a corsage of roses. She was attended by her sister; Miss Ida LaPlant, who wore a soft blue print frock with a corsage of roses. Darrell Lee, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was served to 35 at the bride's home in Ashland. After a short wedding trip the couple returned to Ashland where they are now making their home on Washington street.

The bride was a graduate of the Ashland high school, and had been employed at the Improved Manufacturing company. Mr. McDaniel was graduated from Mansfield high school and works for the Tappan Stove company.

Approaching Wedding Set For Late This Month

SOLEMNIZE NUPTIALS AT NEARBY CHURCH

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Frances Hochscheid and Edward Ohler was solemnized Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Little Washington community church with Rev. Martin officiating. Miss Hochscheid, who has been living with her aunt, Mrs. Grace Leary at Little Washington, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Hochscheid of Denver, Col.

For her wedding the bride was attired in a long rose colored gown and a white veil with satin trim. Her flowers were roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her only attendant was Miss Charlotte Snodgrass who was attired in a powder blue dress with a large white picture hat. She carried pink roses.

Miss Helen Bowden, organist, and Miss Betty Scranton, vocalist, provided the nuptial music. Garden flowers decorated the church altar before which the couple stood to exchange their vows.

The bride was given in marriage by Harry Bolus, a close friend. Harry Zeigler served as best man and Paul and Raymond Schmunk were ushers. The wedding was followed by a reception for 35 at the bridegroom's home.

Mrs. Ohler was graduated from the Denver high school, and has been employed as a beauty operator at the Kobacker store here. Mr. Ohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Ohler, Trimble road, attended Mansfield Senior high school. He is employed at the Cochran paint store. The pair will reside with Mrs. Leary at Little Washington.

Sisters Entertain For Mrs. Paul Houston

A bride of late May, Mrs. Paul Houston, the former Miss Helen Crall, was feted with a miscellaneous shower last night by her two sisters, Mrs. Carl Rupp, Euclid avenue, and Mrs. Fred Gluck, Youngstown. Bridge was in play at three tables during the evening.

Prizes were given to the honoree and to Mrs. E. J. Houston. Pastel colors were used to decorate the tables at which the guests were served. A gift of crystal was presented by the hostesses and the mother of the bride. Next Monday evening Mrs. Frank Kmetz is entertaining for Mrs. Houston.

Engagement to East Lansing Man Announced

GALION—At a lovely appointed rose tea Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Smith of East Lansing, Michigan, former Galion residents, announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Eva Rebecca Smith, to Arthur G. Thayer of East Lansing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thayer of Hubbard Lake, Michigan.

The tea was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gledhill of Galion, uncle and aunt of the bride-elect. Roses profusely decorated the home where different groups were entertained informally between the hours of two and five. The announcement was made on miniature tags attached to rosebuds and presented to the guests.

Presiding at the table when tea was served was Mrs. Robert Corry of Galion, a cousin of the bride-elect. Also assisting in serving were Jeanette Monroe and Gladys Carlisle, both of Columbus, and also cousins of Miss Smith. Nearly 50 guests were received during the afternoon.

Mis Smith was graduated from Galion high school before she moved to Michigan with her parents. She was also graduated from Michigan State College at East Lansing, and for the past two years has been teaching home economics at Haslett high school.

Mr. Thayer was also graduated from Michigan State College where he majored in engineering. He is employed at the Hill Diesel Electric Motor company at Lansing, Michigan.

Couple Married In Trinity Church Near Bellville

LEXINGTON — Miss Wilma Wagner became the bride of Charles Ink at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon before the altar of the Trinity Evangelical church near Bellville. Rev. E. T. Shepard read the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wagner. Miss Martha Klauer was the bride's only attendant.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ink, chose his brother, Carleton Ink, to be his best man. Donald Kochheiser and James Dickson were the users.

Approximately 100 guests attended the informal reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents. Following a short motor trip, the couple will reside with the bride's parents. Mrs. Ink is a graduate of the Lexington high school. Mr. Ink, also a graduate of Lexington high school, is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Use Eggs Freely This Summer

By BETSY NEWMAN

We can now allow ourselves to use eggs freely as warm weather always brings lower prices. White cakes, sponge cakes, angel food and other cakes of the kind are in order, and if you have whites or yolks left, they can be used in various ways—the whites in meringues, the yolks hard boiled and served in sandwiches and salads, or fresh in salad yolks dressing.

Today's Menu.

Tomato Juice
Cold Meat Platter
Hashed Brown Potatoes
Green Peas
Lettuce and Dutch Cheese Salad
Favorite White Cake
7-Minute Icing
Coffee or Iced Tea

Lettuce and Dutch Cheese Salad

Lettuce Dutch Cheese
Olives Salad Dressing

Arrange lettuce on salad plates. Chop 4 or 5 olives, ripe, green or stuffed, and mix through Dutch cheese. Make little mounds of cheese and olives in center of lettuce, top with your favorite dressing and add 1 pitted olive on top of each salad for garnish.

Favorite White Cake.

1 cup lard
2¼ cups sugar
3¾ cups sifted flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. salt
1¼ cups water
2 tsp. vanilla

Reserve one-half cup sugar to beat with the egg whites. Cream lard, remainder of sugar and salt. Sift flour and baking powder together three times and add alternately with the water and vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in the one-half cup of sugar. Carefully fold into batter. Bake in three 9-inch layer pans in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for twenty-five or thirty minutes. Put together with 7-Minute icing.

Seven-Minute Icing.

2¼ cups sugar
1½ tsp. white corn syrup
7½ tsp. water
3 egg whites
1½ tsp. vanilla.

Combine all ingredients except vanilla in top of double boiler. Mix well. Cook over boiling water for three minutes. Remove from fire but leave over hot water and beat with rotary beater seven minutes or until consistency to spread. Add vanilla and blend well.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

If I only could have revealed to her the secret my father was guarding so carefully, the astounding and arrogant message from Jack Leslie, leader of the gang threatening us, that he was in possession of Olga's missing emeralds, worth literally a queen's ransom, and that he would return them when he received in exchange the persons of Noel and Mary! The restoration of those jewels would mean that she need not come to Philip Veritzen, a penniless bride but would be possessed of a comfortable fortune for herself and her daughter, as the emeralds were of almost fabulous value.

"Listen to me, Olga!" I said firmly. "You're getting a wrong slant on this thing and taking it altogether too seriously. You're only asking of me what I would freely ask of you if our positions were reversed. And I am in a peculiarly fortunate position just now. A sum of money which I gave out as a loan has just been returned to me. I do not need it. If I do not turn it over to you, it will go back into the bank. It is a reserve which I never touch for myself, but which I use occasionally to help out a friend in need."

I mentally asked forgiveness for the false impression I was giving her, but felt shriven when I saw her face lighted up with relief.

"You put it so beautifully," she said. "I do not feel humiliated now. But I must tell you all about it."

She paused as if she were marshaling her words, and then went swiftly on.

"You know that I have promised to marry Phil," she said, and there was a softness in her voice which betrayed the joy that was hers at this renewal of her youthful romance.

"Yes, I know." I returned as she paused.

"He wants it to be soon," she said, "inside of a month, but,"—she hesitated —"he is insisting that I permit him to buy my wedding gown, in fact my whole outfit and Olina's.

"He cannot understand, poor Phil!" she went on tenderly, "that I simply cannot do what he wishes. But I haven't the slightest idea what things cost over here, so I do not know how much money I'll need."

"Where do you wish to be married? I hope here with us."

"I am so sorry," she said, "but I must be married in the church of my faith, that of the hereditary house of Transvania, and there is no church of that faith nearer than New York. After the ceremony, I believe Phil wishes to have a reception at a hotel, but I hope to persuade him out of that. Just a little dinner with you dear people, Katharine and the Underwoods—that is what I wish. I know what kind of clothes I will need—but I have no idea of their probable cost."

"But I can find that out easily," I told her reassuringly. "When you go back to your room, make out a list of everything you will require, down to the handkerchiefs. And—I warn you, don't stint on numbers, for if you do, I shall increase your allotment. Then we'll add a liberal sum for emergencies and for your pocket money when you are first married. Remember, it will be all right if you do not repay me for years—or ever—for that matter!"

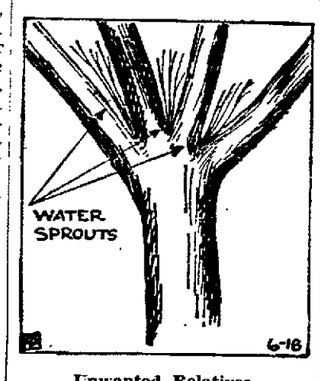
Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Unwanted Relatives.

Some trees, like some families, are plagued by a host of unwanted relatives. In the tree world such unwanted relatives are known as suckers, or water sprouts. They take nourishment from the afflicted tree, and, in addition, give it an untidy or frowzy appearance.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, water sprouts are succulent shoots which grow out from the base or along the trunk or main branches of a tree. They should be cut out as close to the trunk or limbs as possible.

Water sprouts often are seen on apple trees, frequently as the result of too severe pruning. The topping of a tree, or severe breakage of limbs due to windstorms often cause a crop of suckers or water sprouts to appear. In such cases, it is an indication of Nature's attempt to restore proper balance.

Tomorrow's Problem.

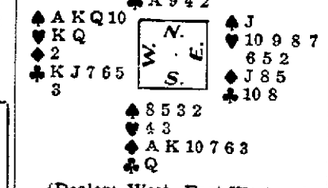
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE "RUFFING SQUEEZE"

THERE ARE no more beautiful plays than the type of squeeze, known to a relatively few expert players, which they usually call the "ruffing squeeze" or "trumping squeeze." Its basic principle is the same as other squeezes in that an opponent is obliged to make a trick-costing discard in one suit or another. It differs in just one main respect. If the hapless opponent picks a particular discard, the declarer then is able to ruff one card in that suit and thereby set up another because the opponent has got rid of one of his guards to a potential winner.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1♣	Pass	1♥	2♦
2♠	3♦

Offhand it appears as if East and West could make game in hearts, whereas actually they can be set at 3-Hearts if South leads his club Q, ruffs the return, cashes his diamond K and makes dummy ruff the next one, thereby giving North two trump winners. So maybe East was crazy like a fox for not bidding again.

West led his spade K against the diamond contract, and ripped off three more tricks in the suit. Had he now switched to his partner's hearts, he would have set the contract one, but to seek bigger game he tried to prevent possible ruffs in hearts by leading his only trump. South was more than pleased. He ran four trumps, then a fifth.

Poor West was now on the spot. If he tossed a heart, the dummy's J would be good, so he threw away a club, of which he had three and of which three had been kept in dummy. The heart J was put on that trick, then declarer went to dummy with the club Q to the K and A. He ruffed the 4 with his last trump, both the 10 and J falling. Now dummy's club was good and the heart A was an entry for it to take the last trick.

STEPPED-UP RHUBARB

Spiced rhubarb puts extra zest into meals. Make rhubarb sauce in your regular way, then, just before you take it off the fire, mix in ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon each of cloves, nutmeg and grated lemon rind to each 2 cups of cooked rhubarb. Boil for a minute, then serve warm or chilled.

Using Hands Aids Mental Health

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In the United States, there are more people mentally sick than the number "physically" sick. More than a million children now in our public schools in the United States will break mentally during their life time, at the present rate.

Most experts in mental health believe that mental and emotional illness could be reduced to an enormous extent if our children grew up in a more serene home atmosphere. Also doing things with the hands for pleasure is being widely recognized for preventive and curative measures in respect to mental health. Both public and private institutions for the mentally ailing are offering increasing opportunities for craftsmanship, especially for mild cases.

Some months ago I visited a hospital in Philadelphia to which scores of people with worries and anxieties come for short or long periods of time, to spend one or several hours a day doing things with their hands for mere pleasure. It may be with a loom, lathe or easel. It may be to use cutting, shaping or molding tools, with clay, wood, metal, yarn, paint, crayon-craftsmanship. And many get temporary or permanent relief, or cure from such procedure.

If the mentally ailing can be helped or cured, how many more might be kept mentally well through similar means.

Many Find Amusement.

Hundreds of men and women today are amusing themselves at making things for pleasure right at home. Scouting, camping programs and the like have increasingly exercised children in craftsmanship. The public school, especially in the kindergarten and primary grades, has been encouraging children to create and make things with their hands, just for fun. Here and there one finds a bit of craftsmanship taught in the junior and senior high school. One finds much craftsmanship at school social centers, as in Milwaukee.

Often the interest at school in working with the hands for fun carries over to the home. In the schools of tomorrow there will be far more emphasis on craftsmanship, especially in the high school.

Some children, but all too few, have work shops at home where they spend many happy hours making things just for fun, their playmates and companions joining them. I know children who have chosen to save money in order to buy tools and equipment for their home workshop. Fortunate the family in which the father or mother or both join with the child in making things for fun in the home.

I wish far more of the family income, as a rule, were spent on tools and materials for the home workshop, and more of the family's hours were devoted to enjoyment from making and doing things in this work shop.

Share With Children.

Thousands of dads in the United States should begin at once to build home workshops for their girls and boys and cultivate the art of finding pleasure in the workshop, preferably sharing with their children who gradually have learned to enjoy this workshop.

More time spent by children and their parents in the home workshop should mean fewer visits to the psychiatrist and psychologist and less time spent in mental hospitals—greater mental health and happiness, in short. It's good for the head and heart to work for pleasure with the hands.

And let us remember this—that as we parents cultivate good mental health in ourselves, we provide a more favorable mental and emotional atmosphere for our growing children. How can our children enjoy good mental health with parents who are not mentally and emotionally stable? As a rule, mental health is more contagious than physical health.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 19.

Conflicting testimonies are found in the astrological map for this day. While the mental faculties are under excellent stimuli, bright and keen as well as fortified by deep insight, shrewdness and sound judgment, yet there will be several adverse situations to cope with by bold initiative, quick decisions and a cleverness penetrating obscure, subtle or sinister circumstances. This intrigue or opposition may arise through elders.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which sagacity, quick and shrewd insight supported by reliable intuitions may be exercised to cope successfully with some hidden or sinister factors as well as downright opposition from elders or superiors. All depends on the decisive use of finely stimulated forces.

A child born on this day, while having brilliant mentality, deep insight as well as intuitions and imagination, should be industrious, systematic and quick to grasp subtle or curious complications.

NOTES ON VITAMINS.

One of the early symptoms of lack of Vitamin A is the inability to see in a dim light. This vitamin is contained in whole milk, cream, butter, cheese, eggs, liver and fish. Canned tomatoes and canned tomato juice are both good sources of Vitamin C. Overcooking lessens the value of Vitamin B, sometimes called the "appetite vitamin," found in fresh vegetables.

CHAPTER IV.

"Hi! Hello!" She raised up, and smiled happily.

Bob King laughed heartily then. "Just wanted to be sure you got in safely," he said.

"Oh. I didn't realize you'd ride all the way in, just to—to check up on us."

"That's okay. I I had to come in anyhow. And I—"

"It's sweet of you," Rosemary dimpled at him. "Thanks."

"What?"

"I said—I just said it's great to see you safely in town, I mean. I was—well, I was worried about you—you're so young and nice and everything you and your hus—the gentleman who—"

"Thanks, Mr. King. You really were a lifesaver."

"Por nada," Bob lapsed into a Spanish idiom, as any Arizonian is likely to do. "You heading for the coast, no doubt?"

"No. I'm stopping here. Or near here. For a short time."

"Say! You mean to tell me—?" Bob King's face brightened and he reached again to remove his hat, as if in greeting. He would have said more, in his enthusiasm, but Rosemary interrupted him.

* * *

Bob turned to see the other man approaching. Dr. Montgomery, carefully dressed in a new outfit, stepped fastidiously over a pool of dirty black oil on the garage floor, and came forward smiling.

'Good morning! Good morning, Mr. King! It's a surprise to see you again, and a pleasant one, I am sure!"

The mood or the atmosphere changed noticeably. Bob, who had been very hearty and informal, lapsed into an oddly strained manner now, although he lacked nothing of courtesy.

In truth, the younger ranger was deeply concerned, and not at all sure of his ground. Never in all his life had he beheld so thoroughly beautiful a girl, he had been telling himself since before midnight. But there, confound it, was the man who was traveling with her, a rather young and cultured-looking man, carefully groomed this morning.

Bob could only conclude that Montgomery had some prior claim to Rosemary. He told himself, with an almost overwhelming sense of bitterness and gloom, that the two probably were engaged; or perhaps were artists or writers or something, already married and holding to their individual names for professional reasons. A lot of dude tourists who come to Arizona are like that.

Bob King, buried under a mass of soap, was mentally kicking himself. Eddie the barber had piled lather on his face until it made him look like snowcapped San Francisco Peak, visible out the barber shop window.

"Sure," Eddie agreed.

"I find a pretty girl, Eddie. Prettiest that ever lived, see? Then I pitch right in to sell another man on the idea of hanging around her, I keep my competitor right on the scene! Damn!"

"Plenty," Eddie declared.

"Never heard of a girl like her," Bob talked on, ignoring Eddie's answer. "She's not little—but she's not big. Her cheeks are plump and pink, like a well, like a mountain apple in October. And dimples in 'em, Eddie, just like the dimple for the apple's stem. Glory!"

"You got it bad, ain't choo, Mr. King?"

* * *

In truth, he was sadly disturbed. He had indeed been a fool, he told himself again. Elated at discovering that Rosemary and Dr. Montgomery weren't married or engaged, but were virtual strangers each other, he urged the professor to make his headquarters here at Flagstaff instead of going farther south. When after much discussion, Dr. Montgomery had agreed, Bob suddenly realized his mistake. The archeologist, indebted to Rosemary for saving his life, would surely fall in love with her too! In fact, now that he thought about it, Bob had observed definite symptoms of Dr. Montgomery's attraction to Rosemary.

Bob sighed. He'd have to work harder.

He didn't know a thing about Rosemary Taylor, really. But that mattered nothing. He had known in two minutes that she was perfect!

The dimples, the extraordinarily deep dark eyes, had told him that much. The brown curls had verified it, and the musical laughter and general gaiety of her had verified it again. Rosemary was youth incarnate, feminine youth and charm. Rosemary. Rosemary Taylor. Even her name was charming. Her skin was fresh and pink. Not tanned like- like—well, like Sue McKee's, for instance. Sue practically lived outdoors. She never talked very much. Nor wore the chic, modish clothes like Rosemary.

He'd have to maneuver to keep Rosemary away from the professor, now that he had been foolish enough to keep the professor here. Why would a man let his enthusiasm for a region get the better of him, anyway? Bob had talked heartily of northern Arizona's attractions, tempting Dr. Montgomery especially with promises to show him prehistoric cliff dwellings and Indian mounds. Hospitality is all right, but when there is a girl—a girl like Rosemary—

He had promised to meet Rosemary in half an hour and drive her out to the trading post she had interited. Dr. Montgomery needed the day to see about his flood-wrecked automobile, to purchase a new outfit of clothing and write letters back home.

Bob left the barber shop feeling better. Indeed, he looked fine. Muscular and erect, as any ranger is, he was almost military in his khaki costume. The stiff-brimmed hat was set at just a slight angle—jaunty. His face was ruddy with health, his eyes bright blue. He hastened to keep his appointment on time.

"I believe you are not exaggerating," Rosemary admitted. "Goodness! It's wonderful!"

* * *

Nor was he. Here around them indeed was a scenic paradise. An incomparable region of heights and distances, cliffs and canyons and forests, sweeps of mountain ranges, and brilliant blue-sky after yesterday's rain.

Three miles from Flagstaff they swung around a curve and saw a buck leap across the roadway. In his wake were four does, graceful creatures bounding across a tiny meadow to form a living picture-book scene that left Rosemary enthralled. The high snowtipped peak of San Francisco mountain was a silent guardian, and patches of color in the far distance were vermillion cliffs.

"It's wonderful, Mr. King!" Rosemary declared, and meant it. "But I'm also excited about seeing my store."

"It's a nice place, all right," he nodded.

"I'm sure it must be nice. Is it large?"

"Yes. And it's a well-built place. I mean, it's not one of these two-bit shacks that sometimes pop up on a roadside, Miss Taylor. This is the real thing. You'll like it. Up-to-date. Modern in every way."

* * *

Rosemary nodded. She didn't speak again for several minutes. Nearing her trading post now, she just sat there envisioning it. She, a New York secretary, really owned a store! An expensive thoroughly modern store, Mr. King had just said.

Now it is true that Rosemary was guilty of careless thinking at this point, but it is also true that she was young. And a girl as well. An impulsive girl. She formed a mental picture of her trading post which—astonishingly—was a replica of New York's swankier Park avenue shops!

That is, she imagined it as a structure of plate glass and chromium. Without reasoning, but just picturing it vaguely, she saw a brilliant neon sign, a modernistic front-door design, deep plush-like floor coverings, and chairs and showcases of shining crome steel. Smartly dressed, sophisticated clerks.

Well, she could preside in there for a day or two, until she sold the place. Madame Taylor, proprietor! It sounded great. She could enjoy a bit of fun, and have a lot to tell her friends when she was back home again.

Riding along the paved highway now she was no longer conscious of the bordering trees, the massive pines and oaks and firs that patterned the sky and slipped by them in magnificent panorama. She was just deep in her own thoughts until Bob King suddenly swerved off the road and spoke.

"Well, here she is!" he announced, heartily.

"Hunh?" Rosemary looked out. "Here who is?"

Seconds passed before she realized he meant it.

"For goodness sakes!" she murmured then.

"Nice place," Bob said, leaving the seat. "I told you so."

Nice place . . . Nice place!

She looked quickly at him. No, he was not teasing her. This was all real. Nice place!

* * *

It looked like a fort. A stockade out of a book about the Revolutionary war. Something the Mohawk Indians had attacked years ago up on the Hudson river.

It was made of logs. Big skinned logs. Unpainted.

Plate glass and chromium? Ha! There was a wide front porch, clear across. Halves of pine logs formed railings. Pine posts, with a few limb stubs left on, were hanging with Navajo Indian rugs, bridles and canteens, spurs and other assorted western merchandise.

A black child, maybe three years old and as naked as sin, stared at Bob and Rosemary a moment, then dashed around the house like a frightened animal.

* * *

Smoke curled lazily from a rear chimney. Trees three feet thick and three centuries old hovered green-clad arms maternally over the long building and formed a rustling tapestry of green behind it. From a very high limb hung a vine stem as big as Rosemary's arm, a grape vine probably, and it made a natural swing that literally invited one to play. Three bluejays chased from a limb through the foliage and down under the porch roof, thence swiftly on across the roadway, flying and fluttering and railing at one another in high merriment.

Rosemary took all this in somewhat subconsciously, swallowing hard and looking desperately intent. Bob King turned quizzically to her and spoke.

Two Men and a Girl.

"Torrid Zone" which is showing at the Ohio theater, has its setting down Mexico way. Pat O'Brien is the big boss for a fruit company that owns most of that territory, making him the virtual boss of the locality. He and his plantation manager, James Cagney, have a standing feud, and Ann Sheridan adds to the mutual dislike. Andy Devine adds to the story by his ever ready wit and comedy portrayals.

* * *

Murders Aboard Ship.

Three baffling murders occurred on the last lap of a "round the world" cruise. The phantom strangler was still at large though Detective Charlie Chan was on duty aboard the ship. All this happens in "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise" which is showing at the Madison theater beginning Wednesday. Sidney Toler plays the title role, with a supporting cast of Marjorie Weaver, Lionel Atwill and many others. The co-feature is "Hidden Gold," with William Boyd in the lead.

* * *

Gay Romance With Magician.

Beginning today at the Majestic theater will be "Eternally Yours," starring Loretta Young, C. Aubrey Smith, David Niven and Hugh Herbert. The story is of the Great Arturo, a gay and witty magician and his young wife, Anita. This romantic couple travel to all the capitals of Europe where they lead a hectic life. Being a showman at heart, he does not realize his wife wants the simpler life, until she leaves him. The co-feature is "Allegheny Uprising," with Claire Trevor and John Wayne.

* * *

Walt Disney's second full length technicolor picture, "Pinocchio," is showing at the Park theater. The characters required to tell the story range from reality to fancy. The woodcarver and the puppeteer are human, and Jiminy Cricket plays the lead in the animal figures. Pinocchio is a doll created by the wood carver who turns into a real little boy. As a second feature the management presents "The Magnificent Fraud," with Akim Tamiroff in the lead.

Marital Troubles.

Roland Young, Mary Boland, Joel McCrea and Nancy Kelly have the leading roles in the comedy film "He Married His Wife" which opens Wednesday at the Ritz theater. Joel plays the role of Nancy's ex-husband, who gets tired of paying her alimony and decides to marry her off to Lyle Talbot, an old beau of hers. Going to the serious mood is "Women Without Names" which is the co-feature. Ellen Drew, Judith Barrett and many others are in the cast.

Did "Diamond Jim" Have Stomach Or Ulcer Pains?

It is hardly likely that Diamond Jim Brady could have eaten so voraciously if he suffered after-eating pains. Sufferers who have to pay the penalty of stomach or ulcer pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At good drug stores everywhere.

They can't get along without it!
The life we lead, the work we do, the pleasures we enjoy are materially influenced by what's going on in the world. It's only natural, therefore, that reading the newspaper should be as much a part of everyday life as eating and sleeping.
Most people, as a matter of fact, can't get along without it . . . and practically everybody reads a newspaper every day, not only for the news it brings, but for the interpretation it presents, the pictures it prints, the entertainment it provides, the advice it offers.
Small wonder that the newspaper should be the forceful, profitable advertising medium that it is. Small wonder, too, that today, when the news plays so important a part in people's lives, the newspaper is an even more vital and profitable advertising medium than ever before.
